USS SIMON LAKE (AS 33)

COMMISSIONED 7 NOVEMBER 1964

THE COMMISSIONING PENNANT

At the moment the commission pennant is broken, a ship becomes the responsibility of the Commanding Officer, who, together with the ship's officers and crew, has the duty of making her ready for any service required by our nation, whether at peace or at war.

For centuries the commissioning pennant has been the symbol of a man-of-war. It is believed to date to the 17th century, when the Dutch were at war with the English. Duty Admiral Marten Harpertzoon Tromp hoisted a broom at the masthead to symbolize his intention to sweep the English from the sea. This gesture was answered by British Admiral William Blake who hoisted a horsewhip, indicating his intention to chastise the Dutch. The victorious British thus set the precedent for a long, narrow commissioning pennant to symbolize the original horsewhip as the distinctive symbol of a ship of war.

The modern U.S. Navy commissioning pennant is blue at the hoist with a union of seven white stars and a horizontal red and white stripe at the fly.

The ceremony today symbolizes a tribute to the ship preparing for its decommissioning, the time-honored end of a ship's life. As of decommissioning, the commissioning pennant, ensign and jack are hauled down for the last time as a dedication to the total operational success of the ship and the crew who sailed it.

Simon Lake Submarine Inventor (1866 - 1945)

Simon Lake, born September 4, 1866 son of John Christopher Lake, an inventor and foundry owner, attended public schools in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and Toms River, New Jersey, and was graduated from the Clinton Liberal Institute at Fort Paine, New York. After a course in mechanical drawing he became a partner in his father's business.

Since his childhood, Lake's main ambition was to build submarines for the Navy. His first submarine, ARGONAUT, was built in 1894. He was not a wealthy man and had a difficult time of financing the building of his boat. Since the submarine was still considered experimental, the United States Government held trials to see if the Lake submarine or that of his rival inventor, Holland, was to be adopted. Neither was considered satisfactory at the time and Lake's much improved submarine PROTECTOR was built in 1901. PROTECTOR was the first successfully tested even-keeled submarine.

American naval authorities were slow in considering PROTECTOR and she was sold to Russia. Lake spent the next seven years in Europe where he advised on submarine construction as well as designing and building. On return to the United States he founded the Lake Torpedo Boat Company which built submarines for both the Austrian and American governments. His first submarine for the United States Navy was USS G-1 constructed at the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company under a subcontract from the Lake Torpedo Company. Commissioned on October 28, 1912, the G-1 set a record by submerging to a depth of 256 feet. Soon the United States Government adopted the Lake type of submarine to be built in its Navy yards under royalty to the Lake company.

There was universal recognition of the efficiency of his underseas craft and his influence on designs of the United States Navy submarine has endured over the years to reach the era of atomic and hydro dynamic design. Simon Lake's interest was not in the military uses of underwater craft but, rather, throughout his life he attempted to convince the world of the commercial and peaceful uses of the submarine. Although his boyhood dream never came true, he went on to create many significant salvage and marine inventions and served in an advisory capacity during World War II. As the inventor of the first even-keeled submarine, Simon Lake was one of the greatest factors in the development of the submarine and, before his death, on June 23, 1945, he had seen many of his early visions become reality.

USS SIMON LAKE (AS 33)

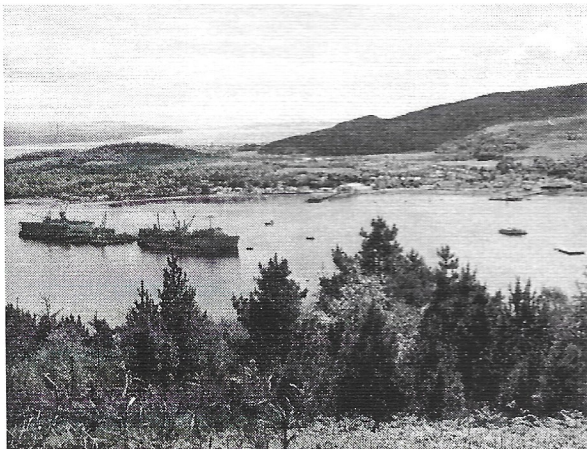

USS SIMON LAKE (AS 33)

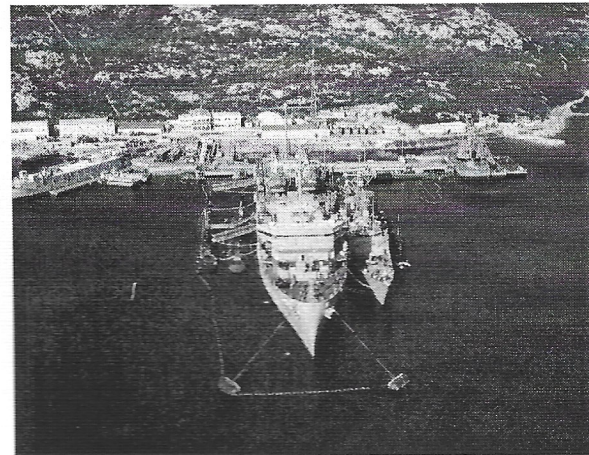

A HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

USS SIMON LAKE's (AS 33) keel was laid on January 7, 1963 by the Puget Sound Naval Shipyard in Bremerton, Washington and was commissioned November 7, 1964. With CAPT James B. Osborn in command SIMON LAKE sailed for Pearl Harbor, Hawaii for a shakedown cruise returning to Bremerton for a six-week yard availability period. Upon completion of the availability SIMON LAKE departed for Charleston, South Carolina where she tended submarines until July 11, 1966. She then sailed to Holy Loch, Scotland, where she relieved USS HUNLEY (AS 31). SIMON LAKE served in Holy Loch for nearly four years, departing for Bremerton in May, 1970. That July SIMON LAKE completed her first overhaul which lasted until March 1971.

SIMON LAKE returned to Charleston April 9, 1971 and served there until she relieved USS HOLLAND (AS 32) in Rota, Spain in December 1972. On January 8, 1977 SIMON LAKE got underway for Charleston to undergo a complex overhaul. Following her overhaul she relieved the USS HUNLEY (AS 31) as the resident tender of Charleston. On July 7, 1979 SIMON LAKE relocated to King's Bay, Georgia where she became the first tender at the newly established refit site. Her outstanding repair work resulted in her receiving the 1982, 1984 and 1985 Battle Efficiency awards. In August, 1985 she conducted a homeport change to Pascagoula, Mississippi to conduct an overhaul. She returned to Charleston in October 1986 where she completed routine upkeep's until May 1987. She then relieved the USS HUNLEY (AS 31) in Holy Loch, Scotland and received the 1988 and 1991 Battle Efficiency award and was awarded the Meritorious Unit Commendation in 1992. While homported in Holy Loch, USS SIMON LAKE steamed an average of 350 days a year.

"Busy, Busy, Busy" in La Maddalena, Italy

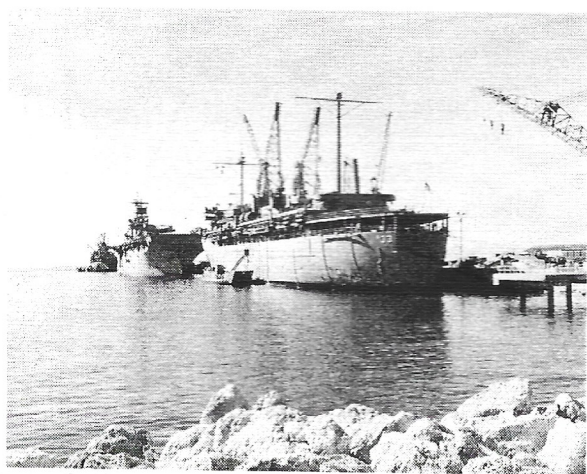

In March 1992, SIMON LAKE returned to Norfolk to conduct an extensive overhaul. After completion of the overhaul in March 1993 she departed for her new homeport, La Maddalena, Italy where she turned over with the USS ORION (AS 18) and has served since. For superior service to the fleet, she received both the Battle Efficiency and Meritorious Unit Commendation awards in 1994. In March 1998 SIMON LAKE transited the Suez Canal enroute to the United Arab Emirates where she supported OPERATION SOUTHERN WATCH in the Arabian Gulf. Her outstanding performance during 47 availabilities led to her receiving the Navy Unit Commendation medal and Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal. In June 1998 she returned to her homeport in La Maddalena, Italy. SIMON LAKE's performance during her last two years of service were particularly noteworthy. Not only did she receive the awards associated with the Arabian Gulf but she was nominated for the SECDEF maintenance award, received the 1997 and 1998 Battle Efficiency awards, the 1998 CNO Safety Award, the 1998 Golden anchor award and she became the first surface ship to receive both the Enlisted Surface Warfare pennant and Officer Surface Warfare pennants.

During her 36 years of dedicated service, SIMON LAKE provided all aspects of logistical and repair support for an average of 45 submarine and surface ship availabilities consisting of over 5000 vital repair jobs annually.
