Coalition Members attended CADCA Mid-Year Training in Atlanta!

In July, the DFC Coordinator for the BCA, Abby Beausir, and Katrina Coyle, BCA Secretary and Prevention Specialist for North Key Community Care, attended CADCA's Annual Mid-Year Training, taking place in Atlanta, GA. The week featured training sessions on a variety of topics, including current drug trends, engaging youth in prevention planning, marijuana policy, engaging the faith community, and engaging volunteers in coalition activities. CADCA, which stands for Community Anti-Drug Coalitions of America, is a national organization of over 5,000 member coalitions that provides technical assistance and training, public policy advoand marketing programs, conferences, and special events.

Young Boone County Had their First Art Exhibit

On August 2nd, Young Boone County had their first art exhibit showcasing why they choose to be drug-free along with various prevention messages to reduce substance use. MacKenzie Miller, Young Boone County member, lead the project and recruited students from her art studio, The Artistry, located in Union, KY to participate.

Other Young Boone members participated as well and their art will be displayed at various branches of the Boone County Public Library along with the Boone County Extension Service Center.

For more information on Young Boone and how to get involved, please reach out to us! The group is open to any high school student in Boone County.
