Answers to the Clues -- Jon't Peck!

architectural character. bed & breakfast inn and still retains much of its original charm and its years, the Williams House has been a landmark. Today, it is a polling place. The house stayed in the family until 1972. For all of she was widowed, Louisa offered her front parlor as a school and a a grocery store, selling homemade sauerkraut to neighbors. After their eight children moved here in 1876. They used the first floor as belonged to the Williams family. Jonas and Louisa Williams and is said to be the oldest house in Eastport. For nearly 100 years, it Site 5: SEVERN and FIRST Eastport's Oldest House This are Eastport's only example of the 19th-century row house style. While there were many duplex houses built in the early 1900s, these renamed after the developer's son, and sold as private residences. into disrepair. In the early 1980s, the properties were remodeled, Maine. When the glass factory closed in 1902, "Murphy's Row" fell the new community, which Murphy named after his hometown in on Severn Avenue. The seventh house was the first post office in company, the Annapolis Glass Works, located just around the corner in 1888 by Charles James Murphy for laborers employed at his Site 6: MAINE Murphy's Row These ten row houses were built hospital for Union soldiers recovering from smallpox. No trace of the War nor the War of 1812. During the Civil War, the fort served as a Annapolis was never invaded, neither during the Revolutionary would find intimidating. In any case, they were never tested, because across the mouth of the Severn River, a prospect any British captain now stands. Together, these forts could triangulate cannon fire third was on the other side of the harbor where the Naval Academy cannon. Another fort was located across the river from here, and the Fort Horn had major defenses of trenches, earthen ramparts and 15 from the Royal Navy during the Revolutionary War. Built in 1776, nue, is the site of one of three forts built to defend Annapolis Harbor Site 7: PORTS Fort Horn Mear here, at the end of Eastern Ave-powerboats decorated with elaborate holiday light displays. event held each December featuring hundreds of sailboats and nationally renowned "Eastport Yacht Club Lights Parade," a festive of sailing regattas. The club is perhaps best known for hosting the to 600 members who participate in the club's extensive calendar opened in 1992 and was recently remodeled to accommodate up on Severn Avenue. The clubhouse at the current site on First Street upstairs room at Marmaduke's Pub, now Ruth's Chris Steakhouse blazer" crowd, the Eastport Yacht Club was launched in 1980 in the Site 8: REGATTA Eastport Yacht Club Not your typical "blue level of parental involvement and broad community support. the school is respected for its dedicated faculty and staff, the Annapolis School of Seamanship. this site is now the home of Chesapeake Bay Magazine and the an Annapolis institution. Still in keeping with its nautical heritage, a pillar of the international recreational boating industry as well as along with the powerboat show they started in 1972, has become partners launched the world's first in-water boat show, which, originally a Sears & Roebuck "kit" house. In 1970, Wood and his and largest sailing school here in 1959, in this building which was School Entrepreneur Jerry Wood founded the world's oldest 17. ANNAPOLIS Annapolis Boat Shows & Annapolis Sailing Network's hit show, "Drive Ins, Diners and Dives." in Eastport's laid-back social scene. It's been featured on the Food hood. In 1986, Davis' Pub opened and now serves as a mainstay by the 1940s to serve the local black watermen in the neighborcorner of 4th Street and Chester Avenue. It became Davis' Lounge community, opened a confections and general store here on the George Washington Davis, a pillar in Eastport's African-American 18. CEORGE WASHINGTON Davis' Pub In the 1920s, to swim and introducing them to the world of boating. known for seamanship and community service, teaching children Today the club is comprised of more than 50 members and is well their piers and most yacht clubs were closed to black captains. Chesapeake Bay marinas would not let black boaters gas up at face of discrimination and founded the club at a time when many with a common interest in boating. They banded together in the Club. This club was organized in 1959 by a group of black men Street in 1963. In 1967, it became the home of the Seafarers Yacht This school merged with the "white" elementary school on Fifth of a Rosenwald School, but without Rosenwald Foundation funding. port's "colored" children. It was built in 1918 according to the plans desegregated in Maryland, this site served as a school for East-19. NAUTICAL Seafarer's Yacht Club Before schools were

- which is one reason why they're so fast and win so many races. earliest small boats - lightweight, shallow hulls with wide sterns racing yachts bear some of the same design characteristics as his in Australia and New Zealand. Curiously, his latest 70-foot-long Cup, Farr learned his craft designing 18-foot-long racing skiffs yachts for the Volvo Round the World Race and the America's Zealand in 1981. Best known for designing large bluewater racing is Farr Designs, based here since Bruce Farr moved from New Coast between Newport and Ft. Lauderdale. A prime example are more maritime related services that anywhere on the East reputation as "America's Sailing Capital" to Eastport, where there 20. AMERICA'S Farr Yacht Design Annapolis owes its > particularly the Bay's all-important oyster and its harvesters. rich maritime heritage and the ecology of the Chesapeake Bay, museum educates curious visitors of all ages about Annapolis' Famous Pearl Brand Oysters." Founded in the year 2000, the into cans and marketed all over the East Coast as "McNasby's boatloads of oysters here to be shucked, sorted, cleaned, packed the last vestige of a once-thriving oyster industry. Watermen brought packing and seafood processing plant from 1919 to 1986, this site is 1: PACKER Annapolis Maritime Museum An active oyster-

> Plath, has made its home in this former sail loft since the year 2000. instruments. The company named for this partnership, Weems and became the North American source for C. Plath's fine navigational on a commercial vessel in 1913. Weems' school for navigation instrument maker C. Plath developed the first gyrocompass installed Richard Byrd, a classmate of Weems at the Naval Academy. German of Navigation. His students included Charles Lindbergh and Admiral established his own school in Annapolis to teach the Weems System pilots, radio astronomers, polar explorers and even astronauts. He Philip Van Horn Weems revolutionized navigation for airplane Site 2: NAVIGATOR Weems & Plath Starting in 1919, Capt.

welcome to the church's worship services and programs. Eastport by offering needed services and spiritual guidance. All are Today, the church plays an integral part in the whole community of among those who founded the church more than a century ago. like the Johnsons, Turners and Harrises, whose ancestors were was consecrated in 1992. There are families still living in Eastport, substantially remodeled and enlarged in 1925. The current church on Chester Avenue. The first church was built here in 1896 and was the beginning, the congregation held meetings in an old wood shed been a cornerstone of Eastport's African-American community. In For many generations, dating back to 1890, Mt. Zion Church has Site 3: NEIGHBORHOOD Mt. Zion United Methodist Church

Trumpy yard in 1962. ing which was later restored as the William Paca House, and the volunteers battled were at the Carvel Hall Hotel in 1951, in the buildthe fire. The largest fires Tuers and the dozen or so other active street corner or they'd miss the truck as it drove by on its way to recalls, volunteers knew they had to be waiting on their designated When the siren mounted on the roof blew for the third time, Tuers 16. He soon became a captain and drove the ambulance for years. Eastport native Art Tuers joined the company in 1949 at the age of station moved to its present location on Bay Ridge Avenue in 1964. ambulance from the founding of the fire company in 1886 until the This modest building housed as many as three fire trucks and an Site 4: GARAGE Eastport Volunteer Fire Company to Leon's memory. focal point of Eastport culture for 68 years. This park is dedicated the businesses that remained here was Leon Wolfe's barbershop, a which had served as Eastport's "downtown" for decades. One of bridge caused the move of businesses away from Fourth Street, Street two blocks to your left, was built in 1947. The move of the through. The drawbridge you see today, connecting with Sixth swung open by a hand crank whenever a boat needed to pass replaced by a steel bridge that had a pivoting central span that skiffs could slip underneath to get up the creek. In 1907, it was many Annapolitans think Eastporters are still revolting. these events have raised thousands of dollars for local charities, across the harbor, known here as the "Gulf of Eastport." While holds annual events like the .05K Bridge Run and the Tug of War of Annapolis to form the Maritime Republic of Eastport. The MRE Eastport revolted again and staged a mock secession from the City centuries later, when repairs closed the bridge in 1998, citizens of stopped here on their way to defeat the British at Yorktown. Two peake Bay on a flotilla of Maryland ships in the spring of 1781 and Continental Light Infantrymen. They had sailed down the Chesa-War, the Marquis de Lafayette encamped on this spot with 1,200 thoroughbred horses in America. During the Revolutionary Hill Ogle. Ogle used the pastures here to raise some of the first of Maryland from 1798 to 1801, and his wife Henrietta Margaret known as Eastport was once owned by Benjamin Ogle, Governor Site 14: EASTPORT Revolutionary Eastport The area now those streets were mainly named for Presidents. new streets could rise in number. Ironically, after all that bother, In 1938, the street numbers were reversed, presumably so the bridge is today, and Sixth Street was at the far end of the point. numbered streets in Eastport started with First Street where the of housing south of the Horn Point peninsula. At first, the ing farmland next to the village of Eastport, spurring a spread Burns built this house in 1894, then developed the surroundwere the economic mainstays. Railroad executive Wm. H. In the 18th and early 19th centuries, raising horses and farming envision this old house surrounded by farmlands and pastures. apartment building, but it doesn't take a lot of imagination to Site 15: THOROUGHBRED Burns House Today it's an

"colored" school on Third Street. Today, with about 260 students, in 1954, it wasn't until 1963 that this school merged with the schools for black and white children to be unconstitutional population. While the Supreme Court declared separate public enlarged over the years to accommodate Eastport's growing students that first year. The school has been remodeled and 1909 as a school for Eastport's white children. There were 225 original square, two-story brick building was completed in Site 16. CENTURY Eastport Elementary School The

> Eastport Civic Association

Healthier Generation of Kids, Annapolis Recreation & Parks, the Annapolis History Consortium, and the Annapolis Heritage Commission.

This free, fun, family challenge has been developed in cooperation with the Four Rivers - The Heritage Area of Annapolis, London Town and South County, Eastport Civic Association, Let's Move - America's Move to Raise a elegant golden "T" decorating the bow. are still afloat. You can identify them by their graceful lines and the Sons between 1947 and 1974. More than a dozen of these yachts yachts. The most famous of these were built by John Trumpy and War and Vietnam, along with exquisitely crafted wooden luxury chasers and other naval vessels for both World Wars, the Korean 1974, this site hosted three different boat yards that built sub-

Site 12: AFFORD Trumpy Yacht Yard Between 1913 and the glass works closed in 1902, the Braun Sausage factory opened creating bottles. The factory also produced china and pottery. After brick furnaces. Twelve workers blew the molten glass into molds, delivered to the factory by barge. Workers melted the sand in Sand mined from a quarry at the head of the Severn River was in a waterfront location? The key raw material for glass is sand.

between 1885 and 1902. Why would a glass factory need to be on most of this block between Severn Avenue and Spa Creek needed to be near the water. The Annapolis Glass Works operated businesses in Eastport were not strictly maritime related, but still like Arnie Gay created modern marinas accommodating pleasure died in 1936, the yard closed. After World War II, entrepreneurs schooners disappeared from the Chesapeake Bay. When Henry traditional wooden workboats like skipjacks, bugeyes and pungy After Heller died in 1916, his son Henry ran the yard. Eventually, Creek, serving both commercial fishing boats and pleasure craft.

wooden boats and this soon became the largest boatyard on Spa

a German immigrant named Wilhelm Heller began crafting fine

Site 10: FIBERGLASS Heller's Boatyard This is where disease and shrinking habitat, there's only about one per cent of shipped all across the country. Now, because of overharvesting, peake Bay oyster harvest, when more than 18 million bushels to operate in Eastport until 1933, when a flood destroyed the were dredged or tonged each year, shucked and packed here, then that shoreline. The decade of the 1880s was the peak of the Chesa-1878, you might see as many as a dozen oyster houses that dotted two-story, wood-frame building. If you looked across the harbor in this site. The company was established around 1870 and continued

Friemel's oyster packing company was located along Spa Creek at Site 9: SEVERN SALLING Friemels Oyster Packing Co. B.A.

A Scavenger Hunt

for History

that number of oysters left in the Bay.

Eastport's famed boat building industry began. On this site in 1868,

Site 11: WATER Annapolis Glass Works Some of the boaters and their new fiberglass sail and powerboats.

.80e1 ni site in 1908.

built in 1873 of wood, was a fixed span. Only small rowboats and to Annapolis. In fact, there were two bridges here. The first one, and you can see the remains of the bridge that connected Eastport Site 13: BARBER Bridge - what bridge? Look over the railing

Walk Eastport: A Scavenger Hunt for History

Unscramble the clues to complete the rhymes.

Answers to the clues are on the reverse of this page. Don't peek unless you're well and truly stumped!

Mac McNasby was no slacker. He was a worldfamous oyster ACEKPR.

Before he flew across the sea,

Lindberg called to Captain Weems. who'd taught him how to use a plotter while he crossed the trackless water. He waved to his friend, the innovator, and said, "See ya later, VAONIGRAT!"

Generations have come here for worship and doing good. Mt. Zion's congregation is the soul of the EIHONBOORDGH.

To find the former home of Eastport's fire brigade, you'll have to find this subtle clue – and then you've got it made. A placard reading "Fireman" with insignia galore hangs above the white expanse of this site's AREGAG door.

Mrs. Williams sold her sauerkraut (and maybe liverwurst) from this place – still here after 100 years on the corner of VEESRN and FSRIT.

The village's first post office was down this little lane.

Once it had a post office, the village needed a name. Charles Murphy named the village after his hometown, Eastport, IEAMN.

intense, it's never put to the test. Our forts could beat the British fleet, so they burned other RPTSO instead.

VEESRN

If you're a sailor, then you oughta race your boat in a ARGTETA.

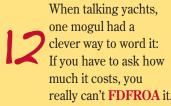

Workboats worked the oyster beds with dredges, rakes and tongs. But the workboats worked too well and now the ovsters are all gone. With oysters gone, GNASILI Association.

the noble age of wooden workboats passed. The modern age emerged with something new called "SBEALFRGIS."

Fire – that's the element that turned the sand to glass. So why'd the glass works have to be at the harbor's edge, you ask? The furnace caused the sand to melt, bellows made it hotter, but the sand they used to make the glass was barged here on the EATWR.

bridge that spanned from here across the harbor, and now this park is named for Leon Wolfe, our most beloved RABRBE.

There used to be a

Show me the bones of Benjamin Ogle, chaser of steeples, breeder of steeds. Nobody knows where they buried the gentleman; nobody knows what his epitaph reads. He might be interred on his Ogleton Farm, a place long since renamed Bay Ridge.

Or he might be where Lafayette's troops stacked their arms, right here by the Spa Creek bridge. Ben let it be known that none should complain when fate cut his noble life short. If eternal contentment were Ben Ogle's aim, where else would he lie but ETTRPSAO?

Now known for its neighborly charm,

Eastport was all once Ben Ogle's farm. The purpose of owning these pastures, of course, was to raise his magnificent OHRDGUOEBHRT horses.

A great education is so elementary; as these kids have learned for more than a CNETYUR.

Annapolis' reputation as sailing capital of the nation perhaps came from here, from this humble abode where Jerry Wood launched the AOAPLSNIN boat shows.

Across the street from Davis' Pub, a waterfront parl is dedicated to a pillar of our community, organization.

our own OGGERE SGNOAHWTNI Davis.

Undaunted by discrimination, these men formed their own AICTNAUL

From the land of the kiwi, Bruce Farr came up and now designs yachts for ACREAIM'S Cup.

Annapolis Harbor PoucesterSt Horn Point 13 Chesapeake Ave Bay Ridge Ave 16 Annapolis Maritime Museum Bunside St saleake Ave Suggested Walking Route is 2.2 miles or 4,380 steps.

Photo credits: Weems & Plath Back Creek Yacht Club Davis' Pub by Ginger Doyel Eastport Elementary School Eastport Yacht Club

Fort Horn by Eric Smith Library of Congress Maryland State Archives Seafarer's Yacht Club

All other photos by Jeff Holland