The Significance of Kata

Written By Sensei Shaun Anderson

Traditional way of learning. Hidden techniques. Moving meditation.

Kata.

For hundreds of years, kata has been a way for the initiated martial artist to train, practice, and perfect their art. In this essay, I will examine the many purposes of kata and the importance of its continued study.

Maintaining tradition

From teacher to student, the kata and the knowledge held within has been passed from one generation to the next. One person has committed to giving instruction, the other, to receiving, through the vehicle of kata. A special relationship is formed to maintain tradition and to maintain the perfection of an art form. Without either commitment, the other would not succeed. Kata is a traditional, organized way to communicate physical techniques. A story told with the body with the backdrop of another time and place.

Bunkai - hidden techniques

A master practicing his craft, in the moonlight, a series of rapid, purposeful movements, disguising treasured, guarded secrets. A riddle to be solved by the initiate, confusion to the uninitiated. Bunkai, the analysis or disassembly of kata. The extraction of technique. A living code.

Kata contains the story of movements, bunkai is the application and study of these movements. Without kata, this information and the application would be lost to history. By learning and considering kata, the student gets the valued information of the martial art.

Moving meditation

At the least, kata is the study of one's self. If a student is determined, interested in clarifying technique, or demonstrating self-discipline, kata is great way to study the martial art solo. Through kata, a student becomes aware and educated in his or her own body dynamics and balance. If the student can be in the moment of the movement, breathing and executing studied techniques... this is meditation in movement.

Conclusion

As a martial artist, I find kata is a valuable tool to preserve the specific techniques of our style. Kata is a specific, tried and true way to pass on knowledge to the next generation of martial artists. Kata is also a valuable tool to study one's own self in body and spirit. Kata has the ability to sharpen the self-discipline and work ethic that resides in the heart of true martial artists. Kata is the art of the martial arts. It is making art with your mind, body and soul.

THEME OF THE MONTH: HEADLOCK ESCAPES

The goal this month is to make all of our youth students "headlock proof". We will be teaching many different ways to escape from different types of headlocks. We will work from standing and sitting, and give very clear, useful info on how to escape from this hold.
