

We Are All Kentucky

Arthur Campbell

My name is Arthur Campbell. I am a Disability Rights Activist. I was born with severe and multiple disabilities. I am a reflection of the many struggles of persons with disabilities. My disability is a gift that is purposeful and influences the lives of people with disability across the nation.

By demonstrating, I influenced the passage of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) in 1990. The ADA was a milestone for all Americans. In Kentucky, I strived to get accessible public transportation, Personal Care Attendants, and Medicaid.

I challenge the system for “equal opportunities , equal rights” and “freedom”-for the civil rights of all.

“If I Can’t do it” is a documentary about my struggle for independence and equality. I change lives!

“I don’t want your sympathy, I just want what most people do: a living wage, a meaningful social life, a few good laughs, and the means to get around.”
