Developing a Common Vocabulary

Ensemble Concepts

TONE – The characteristic sound or “color” of a given instrument. Correct posture, embouchure, and breathing are required to produce a consistent tone. Scientifically, tone is the relative presence or absence of the overtone series. Reminders: “Get inside the sound of your neighbor.” “Support your sound.”

INTONATION – The ability to play in tune with yourself and with the pitch center of the ensemble. Use the recommended tuning note for your instrument first: Bb, A, or F. You must learn the characteristic pitch tendencies of your instrument. Tuning in ensemble requires you to eliminate all beats in the sound. Reminder: “To play in tune, you must play in tone.”

BLEND – The ability to match all elements of your sound with other players (including tone, pitch, volume, articulation, style, etc.) Use the three point check list:

1. Am I playing the same volume?
2. Am I playing with the same tone color?
3. Am I matching the same pitch center?

Reminders: “Lose your identity.” “No Heroes.” “Match your neighbor on either side.”

BALANCE – The relative presence of a given musical part. The band pyramid requires the lowest voices to be the loudest, the middle voices to be relatively softer, and the upper voices to be the softest. The same pyramid applies to each section, with the lowest part being the loudest and each higher part being progressively softer. For example, when tuning octaves, the lower octave should be louder.

VERTICAL ALIGNMENT – The ability to align all rhythms from the top to the bottom of the ensemble. Because sound is directional, ensemble members must carefully watch and listen to ensure tight alignment. The ultimate test of vertical alignment is the audible result. (i.e. Are all sounds arriving together in time?)

LEVELS OF LISTENING – There are three levels of listening that must occur in ensemble playing: 1. Self, 2. Section, and 3. Ensemble. An individual player must monitor all three levels constantly and simultaneously to be a true ensemble player. This is the final synthesis of all the above concepts. Reminders: “Listen louder, play softer.” “Listen to your neighbor on both sides.” “Listen back for pulse.”

Articulation

Every sound has three parts: 1) attack, 2) sustain, and 3) release. Articulation determines the overall shape of the sound produced and typically has the greatest effect on the attack and release of the sound. The sustained part of each sound should be steady and consistent.

- STACCATO – light and separated; approximately 50% of the original rhythmic value (50% sound, 50% silence); Reminders: “Hear the space between the notes.” “Round staccato.”
- > ACCENT – lifted and separated with implied space; each note has the shape of a mini decrescendo
- ^ MARCATO – lifted and separated with audible space; each note is marked and well-pronounced
- TENUTO – sustained full note value, typically performed with a slight stress on the note and short taper before the next note
- SLUR – all notes are connected with no articulation except for the first note which is typically played tenuto. Reminders: “Spin the notes forward.”
- leg.* LEGATO – smooth and connected style with a light articulation at the beginning of each note (“du”); 100% length to every pitch in a phrase. Reminders: “Blow across (or in between) the notes.”

Types of Releases: Taper (decrescendo), lifted (open), hard (tongued, stopped)

The Impact of Music Selection on Student Learning

Matt Temple, New Trier High School
Dr. Rick Jaeschke, Augustana College

Thursday, January 24, 2014
ILMEA State Conference

Wynton Marsalis on Music Selection

For a director, selecting music to play is the first and most crucial action.

The identity of our band is shaped more by what we play than by how well we play it.

CHOOSE WISELY...

Because only through quality music-making, And through quality music-making practices and substantive literature will our students be challenged to go deeper inside themselves, to play above themselves, to realize more fully their individual and collective potential.

To engage in a creative dialogue across time, and to innovate with the finest minds and spirits that have ever lived.

Questions to ponder...

- What would you play if there wasn't a concert?
- What is the 'nutritional' value of the music that we're consuming?
- How can daily rehearsals create deeper, more meaningful student understanding?
- How can we sequence student learning from concert to concert... and year to year?

The Selection "Spectrum"

Where do we start?

- Literature Lists
  - State lists
  - Teaching/Resource Guides
- LIVE performances
- Recordings:
  - Publisher Discs and Websites
  - Professional
  - YouTube
- Word of Mouth
- Commissioned Works

Comprehensive Musicianship Through Performance (CMP)

- Model for planning music instruction
- Created in Wisconsin in 1977
- Teaching with intention...
  - Performing with understanding
- NOT a curriculum, but a very practical framework
- CMP addresses edTPA, the Danielson Evaluation Model, and the new National Core Arts Standards...

NCAAST
National Coalition in CORE ARTS Standards

A Conceptual Framework for Arts Learning
A Voluntary re-imagining of our standards foundation

Rather than offering simply a compilation of individual skills the National Core Arts Standards matrix integrates the processes, skills and knowledge, sample assessments, and criteria into a single organized structure

Move from Skills (be able to do) → to → student centered outcomes
Identify essential outcomes of learning
Sequential, standards-based approach

Rubrics move from Teacher guided → to → Student Centered

Teachers will need to Provide Artifacts
Demonstrate Growth

National Core Arts Standards
Three (STUDENT CENTERED) Artistic Processes for Music Education

Creating	Performing	Responding
Conceiving and developing new artistic ideas and work	Realizing artistic ideas and working through interpretation and presentation	Interacting and reflecting on works and performances to develop understanding

The new standards ask us to change:

- How we approach the teaching and learning process in our ensemble classrooms
Notice "classrooms" vs. "rehearsals"
- How we can empower students
- How students can become active and engaged thinking musicians ("musicianly roles" = CMP)

Not just Performing but the Emphasis is on process-oriented music
Rehearsing for performances won't be enough

One answer = CMP

Common Elements

The teacher demonstrates knowledge of resources
Move from Teacher Directed to Student Centered
Evidence of planning lessons that support instructional concepts

Danielson Framework

National Core Arts Standards

edTpa

CMP

Student learning vs. student activity
Empowering students
Active intellectual student engagement

The learning process is more important than the product

Selection Criteria

- Uniqueness
- Form
- Design (Pacing)
- Depth
- Orchestration/
Voicing
- Unpredictability
- Consistency
- Transcendence
(Text)

The BIG Picture

Programming Considerations

- Historical Periods
- Musical Genres
- Variety of Forms
- Tonal Centers, Time signatures, Tempi, etc.
- Rehearsal Time
- Personnel: Instrumentation, Solos, etc.
- Audience and Community

Mistakes that we make...

- But it's my Favorite Piece!
- Most Prestigious Concert
- World's Longest Concert
- World's Hardest Concert
- Right length, but over-programmed

Programming Philosophy

1. Play less total music per concert
  - 3-4 pieces for an 8-week cycle
  - 15-20 minutes of music
2. Limit new music to one or none per concert
3. Include a minimum of two pieces of core repertoire on every concert
4. Difficulty: 1 easy, 1-2 at level, 1 challenge
5. Sight-read music that you don't actually play in concert

History/Culture	The influence of Sub-Saharan African music on the pervasive use of 2 vs. 3 cross rhythms in American music	Re-arrangement of the hymn tune, "I'll Weep with my Soul," lyrics written by Hoskio Spaflord, who lost both his business in the Chicago Fire and then his children at sea	The development of Sonata-Allegro form during the Classical period and its prevalence as the most substantial form used by composers since that time	Based on The Legend of Sleepy Hollow by Washington Irving (1783-1859)
Heart of the Piece	The ambiguity of duplet and triple rhythmic groupings projects the dance-like feel and contrasts the repose of the lyrical center section.	The story behind the text informs the composer's sensitive and emotional setting of the hymn tune.	The composer's economical use of motives demonstrates exceptional craft in constructing a solid Sonata-allegro form.	The use of through-composed form localizes the composer's creation of a programmatic work that is dark and mysterious.

Scope and Sequence

Annual Cycle

- Time of Year?
- Number of Weeks to prepare?
- Genres and Forms?
  - March
  - Broadway/Movie Medley
  - Transcription

Four-Year Rotation

- Typical Course Progression through the program?
- Composers?
- Curricular Goals?

Common Vocabulary

- Ensemble Concepts
  - Tone, intonation, balance, blend, etc.
- Music Theory
  - Scales, intervals, chords, cadences, etc.
- Music History and Culture
  - Period, composer's life/background, cultural times, etc.

Define, re-define, and use it daily

Classroom Strategies

- Warm-ups/Daily Exercises
- Sight-reading
- Take Out the Piece...
  - ...written by Frank Ticheli...composed in 2005...in Sonata-Allegro form...in g minor...etc.
- Composer's Intention
- Transfer of Previous Understanding
- Music markings, Chalk/Dry-erase/Smart Board, Document Cam
- In-class Recordings

Concerts that Teach

- Audience Etiquette
- Program Notes in the Concert Program
- Pre-Concert Lecture
- Students Supporting Students
- Concert themes, Combined Groups
- Guest Artists: Conductors, Performers, etc.
- Maximum Length of Concert: 10 minutes per grade level (ex. 9th grade = 90 min)

Paradigm Shift

- Select music with a focus on quality over quantity
- Create a classroom environment that values:
  1. Process over product
  2. Expression over perfection
  3. Understanding over knowledge
- Move from Teacher-directed to Student-centered = authentic student engagement
- Teach with intentionality

Next Steps

- Become more familiar with core repertoire
- Read:
  - "Classic" and recent articles on music selection
  - Shaping Sound Musicians by Patricia O'Toole
- Review your own programming:
  - Complete a "Composition Comparison Chart"
  - Create Four-Year Rotation Cycle
- Commission a piece, or join a consortium
- Develop your own written curriculum
- Attend a CMP Summer Workshop
