

Jennifer Johnson

Hi! I'm Jennifer Johnson. I currently reside in Western Kentucky. I currently work as a Medicaid waiver case manager for my local CMHC (Community Mental Health Center). For the past 7 years, I've been working in the field of social work, specifically with individuals with various disabilities. During this time is when I discovered my real passion...advocacy!

The word advocacy to me means, being the strong voice for those who do not know how or are unable to, and/or have yet to realize their own advocacy voice. I've been on a few mental health committees and independent living councils, and I am very excited to be a new member of the PAIMI council. Mental illness is both personally and professionally an area I would like to focus more of my passion, using any and all forms, of advocacy.
