How Much Should I Order?

The answer is, "It depends." Amounts vary depending on the type of event, time of day, and your guests' appetites. Afternoon events like open houses or cocktail hours before dinner will not require as much food as a wedding or early evening party when guests might expect to eat more. Do you want just a small presentation of food, or do you want the last guest to be well served? Also consider if you or a guest is providing something. Generally speaking, 2-4 items will be OK for an afternoon event or before dinner. And 5-8 items should work for an all evening party.
