“...you are what makes college attendance possible for many students in America. I greatly appreciate what you have done for me, and what you have likely done for many others. I come from a military family, which does not always mean a particularly well-off family, which makes it difficult to finance my college attendance, and with your help, I am able to continue my education. I eventually hope to be a doctor and help people around the world, and your generosity will be one of the reasons I have the pleasure of doing so, so again, thank you.” Connor
