

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Questair, LLC Opens Facility in Mississippi to Manufacture Questair Venture Airplane Fast-Build Kits.

Bolton, Mississippi – March 24, 2015 – Questair, LLC to produce and sell fast-build Venture airplane kits.

Dan Myers and Jim Cook, partners in the newly formed Questair corporation, have acquired tooling, parts, supplies and the engineering software to become the exclusive manufacturer of Venture airplanes. Questair plans to create fast-build kits for sale to individuals who wish to build their own high-performance Venture airplane. The company will also support the more than 100 known Venture kit and plane owners with components, parts and technical support.

Homebuilt kits typically provide the owner with all needed supplies including forms, materials and drawings to complete an airplane. Owners provide their own engine, paint and instrument panels. "Today, after one acquires a kit, it can take on average as long as four years to get to flight-ready" says Mr. Myers, "but our goal is to create a fast-build kit that reduces that time to 12 months. We are excited about that possibility and believe that there are aspiring Venture owners who feel the same."

Mr. Cook says "We are passionate about this airplane and are excited to carry on its legacy that began when it was initially launched at Oshkosh in 1987. To continue the work of Venture creators Ed MacDonough and Jim Griswold, both well-respected in aviation, makes our mission all the more worthy".

The Questair Venture is a two place, low wing, all metal monoplane licensed under the FAA amateur built category. Cruise speed @ 12,000 feet is 240 KTAS. Complete specs are available at www.questairventure.com
