 DECISION TIME: WHAT SHOULD I
THROW UNDER THE BUS?

By Steve Bakke  September 28, 2019

Impeach Trump, make him quit, or defeat him in the election. Any of those is a satisfactory result for the political left. Their political theater is interesting, but misguided, because of the insincerity of all that false virtue.

The left is singing a mythological siren's song to "♪ come over to our side ♪" by throwing the President "under the bus." But I represent other honorable citizens who have sincere and principled ideas about our country and its policies that aren't reflected in the left's goals and objectives.

The left isn't requesting that I throw my President "under the bus" as an expression of virtue. Far from that. They want me to forsake my personal conservative ideals in favor of many things I don't believe in. For the zealots, it's short-term politics and votes.

I'm pro-life, with a vision for bi-partisan agreement. I have conservative tax and spending opinions. I support a physical barrier as part of a modern system for bringing order to the border. I believe religious freedom is being challenged. And so on.....

I will follow the party most closely reflecting my policy preferences. And for those uncertain about their political affiliation, just be true to your policy preference instincts.
