

Opportunity for Manufacturers

Survival Storehouse has been working with our social media contacts for many years to promote our core Mainstay emergency food and water products. We have been continuously asked to review other products and are now putting together a network of quality social media sites across YouTube, web, Instagram, blogs, forums etc to promote new products to the Australian outdoors community.

We have verified and tested high profile, focused social media channels across camping, hiking, 4wd, prepper, boating, aircraft, military and general outdoors across Australia. Our introduction package for international and Australian companies wishing to get their product exposure to this network is products for review only. We will supply a formal report on what reviews were performed, a list of responses and interest gained.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR US?

We are building Survival Storehouse into a social marketing company to help introduce new cutting edge outdoor products into the Australian market. Sourcing free products for our network to build their subscriber base and manage the social media will be something we will be looking to commercialise at some point in the future, but in this build phase we are just looking for early collaborators to provide content and help build up our network.

We will be keeping the Mainstay brand and continue to import, distribute and sell while also leveraging off this increased marketing network for this product.

WHAT'S IN IT FOR YOU?

This opportunity provides a cost effective method of getting great product exposure in the Australian outdoors market. We manage the local contacts, local shipping and management of over 50 social media channels across YouTube, Instagram, web, forum, blogs within the top influences across Australia. All our channels have been vetted and tested over years of marketing the Mainstay emergency food and water range.

We have spent a lot of time over the last 5 years testing and building relationships that can now be leveraged by other manufacturers of quality products that fit the many genres of outdoor activity in Australia.

If you are interested in getting your product out in the various communities across Australia please fill out the contact form on our website - www.survivalstorehouse.biz or email us for a confidential chat at sales@survivalstorehouse.com.
