

April 13, 2016

News » 5 Spot

Promotions

A Chat with Geoff Griffin, Author of Brooklyn Bat Boy

A regular City Weekly freelance contributor has just published his first work of fiction

By Scott Renshaw @scottrenshaw

EVENTS
<http://www.cityweekly.net/utah/Events>

African Journey: Photography by G...
 Salt Lake City Mai... | Salt Lake City, UT
 MON 25 <http://www.cityweekly.net/utah/Events>

I'm a Barbie Girl in a Barbie World: ...
 Day-Riverside Bran... | Salt Lake City, UT
 MON 25 <http://www.cityweekly.net/utah/Events>

A-BARBIE-GIRL-IN-A-BARBIE-WORLD-DOLLS-FROM-THE-COLLECTION-OF-BETSY-

THE SOCIAL

UrbanLoungeSLC

Post-punk/bubblegum pop group
 @DressyBessyBand will be at Urban 4/27! Tickets still available, get them in advance!!
pic.twitter.com/LBF8tD9xUC

APR 24

Urban Lounge

 CityWeekly

Fast 5: Ode to Prince. Rest in Purple.
citywk.ly/1T9qmbI pic.twitter.com/60hFlw8ECN

20 MIN AGO

...

Geoff Griffin—a regular City Weekly freelance contributor—has just published his first work of fiction, Brooklyn Bat Boy. It's the story of Jackie Robinson's 1947 rookie season with the Brooklyn Dodgers, through the eyes of Bobby Kelly, a 12-year-old fan observing the struggles of Major League Baseball's first African-American player from up close. Griffin will read from and sign the book April 15 at The King's English Bookshop (1511 S. 1500 East, Salt Lake City, 801-484-9100, KingsEnglish.com) at 7 p.m.

What was the inspiration for telling the Jackie Robinson story in a fictionalized form aimed at kids?

I have a background as a sportswriter, and I also teach elementary school. I thought it would be fun to write a sports book for kids, and ... the most important figure in American sports history is Jackie Robinson. I felt there were so many great lessons kids could learn from Robinson's story. It's got good triumphing over evil, a hero and, best of all, baseball.

How is it to tell a period-piece story while still hoping to engage young readers?

I tried to make it fun by throwing in scenes where Bobby is playing stickball with his friends, sneaking into Ebbets Field in Brooklyn, N.Y., and getting into other mischief. I also used a lot of slang from 1940s New York. ... We even put a glossary in the back. Hopefully, when kids are done with the book, they know the difference between a "knucklehead" and a "knuckle sandwich."

Are incidents involving Robinson's interactions with teammates and opposing players more historical than fictional?

A lot of that is very history-based. There were a couple of times where I did need to alter things a bit. There's a famous [incident] where Robinson is getting heckled on the road, and Pee Wee Reese comes and puts his arm around him and everything goes quiet. I switched that to having it happen at Ebbets Field, so Bobby can see it.

What's the most interesting thing you learned while researching that you hadn't known before?

When we look back on the 1947 season, it seems obvious that things would work out the way they did: Baseball would become integrated, Robinson would become a Hall-of-Famer, etc. In researching how things actually unfolded that season, it's amazing that it all worked out. There were so many times that things could have gone horribly off the rails. [Dodgers owner] Branch Rickey was a visionary, and Jackie Robinson was a genuine American hero for doing what he did.

Tweet

Pin it

StumbleUpon

Envelope icon

Printer icon

Favorite

Share

Tags: 5 Spot

« A Chat With Michael Bigelow, Builde... |

Five Spot »

More 5 Spot »

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Scott Renshaw
scottr@cityweekly.i
@scottrrenshaw@sc

LATEST IN

- A Chat with Justin Pearce of Joe's Guitar
The long and winding road from rock star to builder of custom electric guitars.
by Stan Rosenzweig
- A Chat With Michael Bigelow, Builder of Pipe Organs
Hear a pipe organ's inaugural concert this weekend at First United Methodist Church.
by Lance Gudmundsen
- Q& A with Craig Gordon
We see him on TV and teaching numerous classes and on-the-snow workshops.
by Stan Rosenzweig

More »

MORE BY SCOTT RENSHAW

Movie Reviews: The Huntsman, Elvis & Nixon, A Hologram for the King Miles Ahead, Everybody Wants Some!!
by Scott Renshaw

Going Bro
Richard Linklater affectionately skewers young dude-hood in Everybody Wants Some!!
by Scott Renshaw

More »

COMMENTS

Subscribe to this thread: By Email With RSS

Subscribe to this thread

Post Comment

READERS ALSO LIKED...

Humans of Salt Lake City

Local photo blog inspired by Humans of New York
by Nathan Turner

Beer Professor Bob Trewartha

Beer is more than a beverage—it's a mission
by Robby Poffenberger