

"It keeps all the spills contained when your SPF decides to pop open mid-flight.. but the coolest part is that it's actually eco-friendly."

NEW YORK

"Made from recycled bike tubes, the Alchemy Goods Brooklyn Backpack is watertight for rainy bike commutes."

- Outside

"The Limited Edition Denim Travel Collection uses salvaged workwear denim to create soft goods with handsome looks."

The Seattle Times

Alchemy Goods creates products through a process called "upcycling"- that is, using waste materials as the basis for a new consumer product. We start with a batch of discarded tubes from bike shops, banners from advertisers and other unique materials. We then sort, clean and cut these materials to prepare them for sewing. Our seamstresses then create a fabric from the tubes and banners, which then is laid out with a standard pattern to cut and sew from. Finishing touches like valve stem zipper pulls or seatbelt straps are then added before the bags are quality checked and put on our shelves for distribution. All Ag products are made in the USA since 2004 and have a limited lifetime guarantee.
