

Blue Cheese

Editorial by Jamie Toth

Blue Cheese has a fruity, hoppy smell and beautiful dense, tall buds that release a gentle floral smell when ground. Blue Cheese's direct lineage is Blueberry X Skunk #1, and it has been cultivated by 54 Green Acres farm since 2016. Like all of the small-batch, sungrown fine cannabis from 54 Green Acres, this strain is grown by Certified Kind processes, which ensure a fully organic lifecycle for this plant, from seed to sale.

herb Αt all drv vaping temperatures, the light floral and fruity flavors dominate, with a subtle, hoppy fullness to the consistent but nuanced vapor. The blueberry fruit cloud is dense and visible at even low temperatures. As you move up in temperature and the limonene and linalool are vaporized, the lungchallenging cloud becomes more infused, fruit gives way to citrus, and with floral notes from linalool, with a bit of spice.

The mouthfeel of this vapor is thick, so if you're using vaping to quit smoking, this is a great strain to help in this regard. In a DynaVap, the vapor is so dense it's hard to tell the difference between it and a joint.

If you do smoke Blue cheese, there is a spicy heat to the smoke that can make it difficult to handle for even the most seasoned lungs, but it has a sweet yet musky aftertaste. The fruit is the leading flavor, just as it was with the vapor.

Regardless of your consumption method, do not operate heavy machinery with your friend Blue Cheese. This strain has highly analgesic properties and is so stony that you'll forget the last word you said. Don't think 'couch lock' as much as 'couch fusion' because this has everything you need to kick back and relax, and it's a great post-workout treat, but it's not what you should reach for if you need the motivation to get out the door for the workout, because leaving a tri-> meter area is difficult. Introspective and relaxing, this is also a perfect companion for meditation or some restorative yoga.

> > The terpene mix in Blue Cheese is a great one for anyone suffering from insomnia or anxiety. It has a heavy body buzz that is magical for pain relief.

As one of 54 Green Acres indica strains, this Southern Oregon sungrown bud is organically fed and is watered from Sucker Creek, a tributary of the Illinois. 54 Green Acres is a Certified Kind farm, which means that all of their soil, nutrients, and processes are organic and as gentle to the Earth as possible, and are re-certified every year to ensure compliance to rigorous standards. That means each bud is bursting with all of the flavors that nature can bestow.

Like all of the strains selected by 54 Green Acres, this strain grows well in the environment that the Illinois River Valley has to offer. The farm has owned water rights for the usage of Sucker Creek. In addition to watering our fine cannabis, the creek also helps sustain the humans, rabbits, apples, lettuce, and other crops at 54 Green Acres.

Farnesene

Valencene

Squalene

alpha Pinene

Trans-Nerolidol

alpha Bisabolol

Caryophyllene Oxide

Endo-Fenchyl Alcohol

beta Myrcene

Beta Nerolidol

Trans-Phytol

Linalool

beta Pinene

Delta Limonene

alpha Humulene

Beta Caryophyllene