"The Other Nine"

We have read the story of the Ten Lepers so often throughout our lives. We often focus on the thankfulness of the one leper, in contrast to the nine others who did not return to "give glory to God." It is much easier to condemn the nine rather than understand them. Jesus knew about the ten - where they were and where they went; why they were and who they were - and he healed all of them just the same.

Leprosy was a feared and horrible disease.

Ten lepers called out to Jesus that day. Ten obediently kept their distance, living their own identity. Ten were invited to return to life. Ten were made clean and were healed. Ten were cured - not just physically - but now becoming socially acceptable again. Ten were restored to the community amid the challenging, even troubling teaching of Jesus - teaching about the life of faith, the call to discipleship and living in response to that call.

But only one - when he saw that he was healed - returned, threw himself at the feet of Jesus and said thanks. Only one turned back. And he was a Samaritan. He was an outcast even among the lepers - a leper of the lepers. But he was the only one who turned back and gave thanks. He knew Jesus by name, but they all knew. He begged for mercy, but they all begged. He was healed, but they were all healed. And Jesus asks: "where are the other nine?"

This story rests at the very center of Jesus' teaching about discipleship, and the meaning of faith. Jesus has told his disciples and the crowd: "Be on your guard! Forgive one another; heal one another; if you only had faith the size of a mustard seed..." And later on He will tell them that the Kingdom of God is at hand - that it is present in their midst.

All of us who have been touched, cleansed and healed are invited by the Lord to act on our own faith, turn back, change direction a little, and be as approachable and welcoming to the outsider as He was.
