

HEMP <sup>VS</sup> MARIJUANA

Understanding the Difference

Hemp and Marijuana are terms often used interchangeably to describe any cannabis plant or its derivatives. Here's an easy way to delineate between the two:

Hemp is cannabis.
Marijuana is cannabis.
Hemp is NOT Marijuana.

HEMP
< 0.3% THC
> 20% CBD

MARIJUANA
> 20% THC
< 10% CBD

Hemp plants are typically tall and thin and cultivated to produce foods, oils, paper, textiles, and high CBD extractions.

While they have many different chemical properties, according to the Federal Government, industrial hemp includes the plant Cannabis Sativa L. and any part or derivative with a tetrahydrocannabinol (THC) concentration of no more than 0.3 percent on a dry weight basis. (81 FR 53395)

So 0.3% is the “magic number” laid out in sec. 7606 of the Farm Bill; All CBD products manufactured by CBDistillery are derived from crops grown in accordance with 7606.

< 0.3% THC = HEMP for CBD

CBD Cannabidiol

- Primarily derived from Hemp
- Non-psychoactive (produces NO “high” effects)
- Commonly used in dietary and natural supplements
- Available in all 50 states

vs

THC Tetrahydrocannabinol

- Primarily derived from Marijuana
- Psychoactive (produces intoxicating or “high” effects and side-effects)
- Commonly found in recreational and medical marijuana products
- Only recreationally legal in 9 states, and medicinally legal in 30 states.

CBDISTILLERY

Endocannabinoid Support without the Risk of Side Effects

Trace amounts of THC are not enough to cause any intoxication, even if large amounts are ingested. CBD from hemp provides the same level of endocannabinoid system support without the high or the risk of marijuana’s potential side effects.

100% SAFE

🌿 FUN FACTS:

Hemp plants are considered the oldest domesticated crops in our history.

Some cannabis plants were selectively bred for religious and medical purposes.

Marijuana (THC) was federally legal until 1970, when The Controlled Substance Act was implemented.