Product Data Sheet

General Description

RTF® is the only Tall Fescue with True Rhizomes. Rhizomes help the RTF quickly fill in damaged and bare spots in your lawn with new shoots of grass. This results in less over-seeding, fewer weed problems and no wide-leafed ugly clumps of grass like other tall fescues can form. RTF is an excellent choice in areas where bluegrass struggles.

RTF's extensive root system has the ability to draw moisture from a deep soil profile, which helps it use less water and makes it adaptable in a wide range of soils. It has excellent heat and drought tolerance, with less irrigation. A New Mexico State University trial proved RTF maintained high turf quality with 30% less water.

Benefits

- Rapid development of a deep root system
- Quickly fills in damaged or open spots with new shoots of grass

- Fine leaves that produce a very dense, uniform lawn
- Excellent drought and heat tolerance with less irrigation
- Environmentally friendly, reduces chemical and fertilizer inputs
- Adaptable to a wide range of soil conditions
- Endophyte enhanced for improved insect, disease and drought tolerance

How to Specify RTF® Sod: Visit RTFSod.com to download the Architect Specifications for RTF Sod or to find the closest licensed grower. RTF Sod is only grown by licensed RTF turfgrass producers. To guarantee that you are receiving genuine RTF Sod, request an RTF Certificate upon delivery of sod.

BarRobusto, a component of the RTF Sod blend, has been approved by the Turfgrass Water Conservation Alliance because it demonstrates a significant water savings over conventional Tall Fescues.

With RTF® Sod you instantly get a healthy mature lawn, grown by only the best turfgrass producers in the U.S. and Canada. This is why you want to insist on RTF sod for your lawn or sodding project. The Only Sod You'll Ever Need®.
