Missionary Moments

Morning: New Hampshire Church Planter Reaches Out to Former Catholics

[New Hampshire] Raised as a Roman Catholic, KEVIN FORTIER is planting the gospel among the people of Manchester, N.H. Though many consider themselves Roman Catholic, most either practice the faith of their childhood sporadically or have left the church altogether. Many have never been in a church or heard the good news about Jesus. As Kevin reaches out to people with Jesus' offer of salvation, he says he is blessed to see Him at work in a spiritually dead city. Through your Cooperative Program financial giving, Kevin can serve the people of this community. Pray that the Lord would draw more people to respond to the gospel.

Evening: Changing Erroneous Mindsets in Central Asia

[Central Asia] Many Russian churchgoers believe someone younger than 18 is not old enough to have a committed relationship with Christ. But IMB missionaries CHARLES and PAULA CULKIN* helped change the mindset of one pastor and his wife. "They were surprised to hear that our children came to know Christ at an early age and had continued to serve Him," said Paula. She mentored the pastor's wife in children's ministry, and the Russian couple started a summer camp for children. Now, when asked about missions, about half the children at their church say they want to be missionaries. Praise God that your gifts through the Cooperative Program fund missionaries who train local believers to be missions-minded.
