

DENVER WALKER

Short Bio

Denver considers music her vocation and treats it with care, dedication and joy. She received her undergraduate degree in Music Performance in 2013 from Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond, Virginia. After a successful seven years performing and teaching in Richmond, Denver was accepted into the studio of Julian Gray's at the Shenandoah Conservatory in 2015 and earned her Master's in Music Performance in 2017. She is currently finishing her Doctor of Musical Arts in Guitar Performance from the Shenandoah Conservatory. Denver resides in Winchester, Virginia where she actively performs as a classical guitarist, rock guitarist, and pit orchestra guitarist. She is adjunct faculty in the Music Therapy and Guitar Departments at SU in addition to teaching guitar and ukulele at Powhatan School. Denver also holds a thriving private studio. In her spare time Denver enjoys arranging music for guitar, running, playing board games and Dungeons and Dragons.