The Capital Voices Emerge!

A Sizzling New Season with The Capital Voices

Ottawa's premier vocal harmony group is proud to present their exciting new season for 2017-18. Don't miss the debut of this brand new configuration (formerly known as The Juliet Singers), featuring original compositions and arrangements by award-winning Ottawa composer, Elise Letourneau. Prepare to be dazzled by this stunning blend of voices, including Rachel Beausoleil, Normand Glaude, Kenny Hayes, and Elise Letourneau.

The Capital Voices will give a sneak preview on CKCU radio on Friday November 10, at 8h30. In the company of host Bob LeDrew, The Capital Voices will highlight Remembrance Day with a few timeless songs from the WWII era that still ring true as contemporary standards. Retired jazz critic Lois Moody will also be in the studio to provide commentary and context.

The Capital Voices kick off their new concert season on Saturday December 9th, with "Time of the Season," a selection of songs to make the dark season bright, both a cappella and accompanied by John Kofi Dapaah on piano. Featuring handpicked jazz and pop standards, original compositions, and a carol or two, the group will introduce their new sound to an eagerly awaiting public! Continuing on March 3rd, 2018, The Capital Voices offer "You Must Believe in Spring," a selection of songs from Michel Legrand and other jazz legends. The Capital Voices follow up on June 2nd, 2018, with "M is for..." Monk, Mingus, Mercer & more!

The Capital Voices are very happy to announce that their season will take place at Trinity Anglican Church at the corner of Bank and Cameron, in Old Ottawa South. It is an excellent space, with lots of seating and a great acoustic. Take advantage of season ticket savings, and enjoy superior vocal quality and arrangements. New genres and possibilities await this hot vocal team that is aiming high and providing a sound experience you will not forget.
