Has our President Officially Lost his Ability to Discharge the Powers and Duties of his Office?

By Charles Hurt - - Tuesday, December 1, 2015 - Washington Times

Anyone who listened to President Obama speak to reporters in Paris on Tuesday would reasonably conclude it is high time to start drawing up the papers to transmit to Congress for his removal.

If you are one of the millions and millions of literate Americans out there who have simply tuned this president out the past three or four years, that is certainly understandable. But if you tuned in to the long, rambling, empty press conference, you would have been truly alarmed.

Without the use of the teleprompter, his speech can be described only as "halting." It was impossible to count the number of times he seized up, able to deaden the silence with only a drawn-out "uh," "um" or "ahhh."

The White House dutifully scrubbed all the halts and stutters from the official transcript, and it was impossible to count them in real time. But a sample of his incoherent word salad found him stuttering about every 15 words, which comes to more than 330 "uh-um-ahhs" in a single appearance.

This is not the same soaring speaker who inspired so many in 2008. This is a broken-down man who has lost the only gift he ever had. Hope and Change have been hijacked by Hopeless and Changed.

President Obama is so old and gaunt, he makes Keith Richards look like Justin Bieber — no offense to Keith Richards. At least Mr. Richards makes sense when he opens his mouth.

It took the doddering president 47 minutes and over 5,000 words to answer just six questions. And by "answer," I simply mean he unspooled a torrent of disjointed words and broken sentences.

Part of the looniness of it all stemmed from the giant scam he and other world leaders are trying to put over on advanced countries, punishing them for their industriousness by redistributing billions and billions of dollars from hardworking American taxpayers and handing it over to tin-pot dictators in disheveled Third World countries.

"You go down to Miami, and when it's flooding at high tide on a sunny day fish are swimming through the middle of the streets," he said at one point. As if this were some kind of evidence that high tides or flooding are somehow caused by global warming.

Never mind that a) the argument makes no sense; and b) local media refuted the canard.

But President Obama's fevers went well beyond global warming hysteria.

Asked about the "mass shooting" where a nut job shot three people at a Colorado abortion clinic, President Obama once again became exasperated with the American people.

"I say this every time we've got one of these mass shootings: This just doesn't happen in other countries."

He actually said this. In Paris. Not three weeks after gunmen mowed down 129 people enjoying freedom in the French capital.

Either the man is incapable of remembering Islamist terrorist attacks or he's simply losing his marbles.

Then, of course, there is this business of comparing radical Islamic terrorism to - global warming? He actually insisted that global warming is an even greater threat than terrorism itself.

Again, he said this. In Paris. Not three weeks after the worst terrorist attacks in a civilized country since 9/11.

Someone alert the Senate president pro tempore. Somebody call the speaker of the House. And let's all dust off the 25th Amendment.

Happy Holidays to you all! As we plan for an event filled end of the year, NCRWF will be celebrating Christmas together December 8, at our annual party. There will not be a speaker scheduled, but we will have the installation of new officers.

Merry Christmas and happy December everyone. As we go into the New Year, our hopes are focused on November 2016. It is going to be one of the most important election years we have experienced in our lifetime. We all need to pull together and work to elect a Republican President, and keep our majorities in the House and Senate.

Our speakers throughout the year are going to be sharing information to help us understand the many facets of the election; from the process, to the candidates and propositions. Our new board will do everything possible to keep us updated and informed.

January 12: To start off 2016, we will have two speakers that are quite knowledgeable about the election process. Our own Ruth Weiss, is very involved with the Election Integrity Project and will not only give details on how this organization is working to keep elections fair and honest, but how we can help to ensure the integrity of the voting process.

Lori Steele Contorer, will speak about Security and Audibility in Elections. She will explain the reality vs. myth, touching on issues from the past, and the imminent crisis in voting technology. Will 2016 be 2000 all over again? Lori will discuss the advantages of using technology to ensure accurate auditable elections for all eligible voters.

February 9: What could be more appropriate heading into April and tax time than James Lacy, an attorney and author of Taxifornia, who is going to bring us up to date on what is going on in Sacramento and Washington, and the many ways our elected officials find to spend our money and while taking even more out of our pockets.

March 8: Nancy Amador & Denise Lamborn will help us understand the backgrounds and qualifications of the judges who will be on the ballot, Judicial Ratings; Fair or Folly.

On evening of April 22, which will be separate from our meeting date, Navajo Canyon will be hosting a Political Forum at St. Dunstan's Episcopal Church for the candidates running for office

Put those dates on your calendar. 2016 is going to be an important and interesting election year, and you don't want to miss any of it.

Glenda Boerner

Hello Navajo Canyon Ladies! I would like to share an experience I had last month at Voter Registration on November 18:

Before we had finished setting up, a gentleman walked up and asked if he could register Republican here. I had him have a seat and put a form in front of him. As I was helping him with the registration form, I thanked him for his service as he was wearing a ship's ball cap. He was surprised I noticed and told me that wasn't the ship he served on. He told me he served on the Kennedy. I asked him if that was when it was home ported in Norfolk. He looked surprised again that I even knew this. He told me he had been a lifelong Democrat. I said, so you are switching parties, and showed him another area on the form I needed him to fill out. Then, he looked up at me and said he was scared and wanted to be able to vote for Trump. He didn't feel the Democrats were working to keep him safe.

Sisters, what an awful way to gain Republicans! At the expense of our safety! How incredibly sad and frustrating knowing the Democrats outnumber us! Our GOP values are being demonized by people who have lost their moral compass. We have to work harder than ever in 2016.

Plan to make this the most important election of your life, because it is! Join me at Voter Registration. Make a commitment once each month, usually the third Wednesday, sometimes the fourth. I always "warn" you in advance each month.

You will truly be surprised, inspired, motivated and entertained when you show up on the concourse for the New Citizen's ceremonies. The more people we have, the easier it is. There is a spot for everyone, even if you just want to stand there with a "Register to Vote Here" sign and point at our booth. Or, learn all you need to know about Voter Registration forms from several experts on the team. Maybe you might want to herd the masses to our photo op area. We should always strive to out number the Democrats across from us!

Next Voter Registration opportunity is December 16 at Golden Hall

Please call or email me with any questions! 619.284.9958 fleetwood4@cox.net

Thank you to my Navajo sisters for ioining me on Nov 18 downtown. Marjie Siekerka, Waskah Whelan, Pat Boerner, Diane Randolph, Gloria Harpeau, Dara Hembury, Sally Steele. and Sheila Truesdell. We really had fun and then we went to lunch close by. We shared stores from the morning's happenings. And there were plenty!

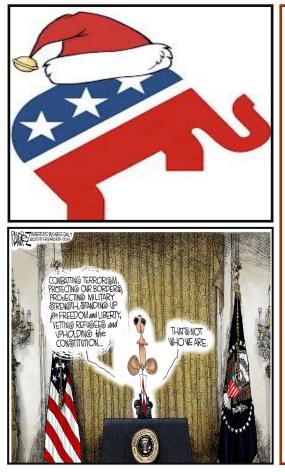

The Politics of Optimism

by Alex Steffen

Entrenched interests use despair, confusion and apathy to prevent change. They encourage modes of thinking which lead us to believe that problems are insolvable, that nothing we do can matter, that the issue is too complex to present even the opportunity for change. It is a longstanding political art to sow the seeds of mistrust between those you would rule over: as Machiavelli said, tyrants do not care if they are hated, so long as those under them do not love one another. Cynicism is often seen as a rebellious attitude in Western popular culture, but, in reality, cynicism in average people is the attitude exactly most likely to conform to the desires of the powerful – cynicism is obedience.

Optimism, by contrast, especially optimism which is neither foolish nor silent, can be revolutionary. Where no one believes in a better future, despair is a logical choice, and people in despair almost never change anything. Where no one believes a better solution is possible, those benefiting from the continuation of a problem are safe. Where no one believes in the possibility of action, apathy becomes an insurmountable obstacle to reform. But introduce intelligent reasons for believing that action is possible, that better solutions are available, and that a better future can be built, and you unleash the power of people to act out of their highest principles. Shared belief in a better future is the strongest glue there is: it creates the opportunity for us to love one another, and love is an explosive force in politics.

THE DEBT CEILING

I love it when a complicated situation can be explained in such simple terms!

- Democrats don't understand THE DEBT CEILING
- Republicans don't understand THE DEBT CEILING
- Liberals don't understand THE DEBT CEILING
- NO ONE understands THE DEBT CEILING

SO, allow me to explain.

Let's say you come home from work and find there has been a sewer backup in your neighborhood. Your home has sewage all the way up to your ceiling.

What do you think you should do?

1. raise the ceiling, or

2. pump out the sh--?

Your choice is coming in November!

Again ladies thank you for providing me in a timely manner your guesstimates for your October, November and December volunteer hours. At our January meeting I will be collecting the actual volunteer hours for those three months.

Wishing you and all of yours a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Chaplain's Words of Inspiration

Ginny Wisley

...and the Angel said "Do not be afraid; for I bring you good news of a great joy which shall be for all the people." Luke 2:10

So, my friends, are you done? Done with the shopping? Done with the wrapping? Done with the ads for Black Friday, Cyber Monday & who knows what for Tuesday through Saturday? Done with the parties (well other than NCRWF's)? As this is written, neither am I.

I am looking forward to being done and finding the real meaning of this season: the celebration of the Christ Child. To walk through Bethlehem so that I can find the peace of each moment. To be more Christ like as I go through life. To understand that life is more than things and stuff.

I realize and understand that not all of us are people of the Christian faith. To those of you who don't celebrate Christmas, I hope that you enjoy your faith's celebrations. It seems to me though, that all faiths believe in the tenets of quiet reflection, peace and love. Rejoice in the time that you honor your faith's traditions and let them be filled with happiness.

So this season, celebrate with love to one another, with kindness to one another, be people of faith and hope. As the great philosopher Charlie Brown (or maybe Linus) said: "It's not what's under the tree that matters, it's who's around it!"

You don't have to travel anywhere Faith and hope and love Will bring you there Bring you there

Take a walk through Bethlehem Come and kneel before the lamb Good news for every man. *

Merry Christmas, Happy Hanukkah!
