

Behavioral Clinicians

School: At school, the behavioral clinician works with the child to address any behavioral or emotional issues by helping the child develop and utilize new skills.

Home: Behavioral clinicians also work with the child's family by engaging them in the treatment process. They can provide parents or guardians with tools to help promote positive behaviors.

Community: In order to work on specific goals and skills, behavioral clinicians may work with the child in a community setting such as a library, playground, park, etc.

Treatment is a year-round service and continues through all school breaks.

Psychiatric Services

Meridian Health Services also offers psychiatric services. This may include complete psychiatric evaluations as well as medication management.

Medical Services

Meridian Health Services offers primary medical care including physicals, immunizations and vaccines, visits due to illness, as well as the treatment of chronic medical conditions.

Medical Services are offered at various office locations, including the Suzanne Gresham Center and Meridian Health Pediatrics.

Therapists

Like behavioral clinicians, therapists may work with a child in the school, home and community settings and may consist of weekly individual and/or family therapy. Therapists also collaborate with other Meridian service providers to provide comprehensive treatment.
