Emma's Note

It has been ten good years I have stood here, here is something that this New Zealand girl would like to share with you.

This Tiny Room

One should wonder what it means,
The moving smell of coffee beans,
With big and small and old and young,
This room of joint and single fun.

Busy chatting, what's the matter?
Someone's dropped the pancake batter,
Kitchen aids and ovens roaring,
The baby in the corner snoring.

Families with their growing faces,
Londoners with high tech paces,
Proposals, break ups, I've seen the lot,
Decaf lattes with a triple shot?

Feel good moments smashed up on toast,
Groups of cyclists louder than most,
Mud from all the people walking,
Lopsided cakes get everyone talking.

The ugliest lemon meringue to be,
Won't last long in here, you'll see,
Fry me up some bubble and squeak,
Laugh until you cannot speak.

Grumpy grandads, dogs barking,
Oh no I forgot to pay the parking,
It's a miracle how the room's still here,
This crazy space of time & air.

It's you who makes this room exist,
It's you who gives the place a twist,
I will keep these memories in my heart,
And bake another flippin' tart.
