MONSON, MASS. — Quaboag Country Club was the site of Wintergarden's antiques auction on June 1, with a sale that was rife with everything from antique advertising and toys and games to crocks and jugs and still and mechanical banks. Antique lighting, too, was a popular category and as proof, two related items spurred bidding interest. A Tiffany & Co desk lamp realized $978, while a leaded glass shade finished at $489. Playful Antique Holiday Music Box
Cranks Out $1,280 Winning Bid

MOUNT KISCO, N.Y. — "We were all very pleasantly surprised," said the Benefit Shop's Anna Graziosi. She was referring to an antique holiday music box that was offered in the firm's June 5 Red Carpet auction. The music box featured a silver-toned metal crank on front. Depicted were two children throwing a ball and one building a snowman. With moving pieces and measuring approximately 12 inches long by 10 inches tall by 8 inches deep, the music box fetched $1,280. "We did not have that much information about it, added Graziosi, "and with such little info, we definitely did not expect the results we got. We have four more coming up at our next auction and are very excited for them to cross the block." For information, 914-864-0707 or www.thebenefitshop.org.

New Auction Record Set For A Single Print
By Carrie Mae Weems

NEW YORK CITY — A new auction record was set for a single print by Carrie Mae Weems at Phillips' sale devoted to women in photography on June 7. The untitled (Man Smoking) from the "Kitchen Table" series, 1990, (shown) extinguished its high $35,000 estimate to sell for $70,000. Rachel Peart, head of sale, characterized the sale as "a celebration of women's enduring contributions to the field of photography, both through their roles in front of and behind the camera. We saw tremendous enthusiasm from bidders across the globe with participation on six continents, leading to a particularly impressive response for works by women photographers." As expected, Dorothea Lange's "Migrant Mother, Nipomo, California" led the auction, bringing $87,500. New records were set for Graciela Iturbide, whose "Mujer ángel, Desierto de Sonora, México" sold for five times its low estimate at $20,000, as well as Bob Adelman and David Montgomery. Maliavin's 'Portrait Of A Young Girl' Charms
To $398,000 At Bonhams

LONDON — A portrait by the Russian artist Philip Maliavin (1869–1940) was the top lot at Bonhams Russian art sale on June 5. "Portrait of a Young Girl in a Pink Dress" achieved $398,000. During the 1920s–30s, Maliavin traveled all over Europe and the United States fulfilling commissions from wealthy and aristocratic families. Stylistic evidence suggests that "Portrait of a Young Girl in a Pink Dress" was painted in the mid to late 1920s, and although the identity of the sitter is unknown, she is likely to have been a member of a European aristocratic family. Was It Thoughts Of Picnics Or Provenance?

WINDSOR, CONN. — June 8 was a halcyon day for Nadeau's sale of decorator's custom, outdoor furnishings and decorative accessories. That may have helped propel an eight-piece teak outdoor lot with six Barlow Tyrie folding chairs, round table and a large umbrella to a $6,985 selling price. Besides the notable maker, however, the set also had going for it provenance to the estate of Deborah G. Black, Greenwich, Conn., a noted agricultural research scientist at Union Carbide Corporation, later professor of economics at Hunter College and longtime volunteer within the Greenwich community.
