Private Jails in the United States - FindLaw Private jails, prisons, and detention centers have a long history in the U.S., as far back as 1852 when San Quentin was the first for-profit prison in the U.S., long before it was state-owned. A resurgence in private prisons came in the wake of wide-spread privatization that took place during the 1980s.

The United States Constitution Article IV Section 1 "Full Faith and Credit shall be given in each State to the public Acts, Records, and judicial Proceedings of every other State." * January 19, 2011 Judge May's Conclusion of Law was that the Dallas Police Department and the North Carolina Department of Transportation are both private entities that do not fall within the executive branch of State government. This decision was upheld in judicial review by judge Ridgeway. This means that every police department in the country is a "private entity," in other words, they are private contractors and private-for-profit businesses. So if a Wackenhut security guard driving an armored car pulled you over and tried to give you a ticket what would you do? "Governments descend to the Level of a mere private corporation, and take on the characteristics of a mere private citizen...where private corporate commercial paper [Federal Reserve Notes] and securities [checks] is concerned. ... For purposes of suit, such corporations and individuals are regarded as entities entirely separate from government." - Clearfield Trust Co. v. United States 318 U.S. 363-371 (1942) What the Clearfield Doctrine is saying is that when private commercial paper is used by corporate government the Government loses its sovereignty status and becomes no different than a private corporation. Government is bound by the rules and laws that govern private corporations so if they intend to compel a living man or woman to some specific performance based upon its corporate statutes or corporation rules, then the government, like any private corporation, must be the holder- in-due-course of a contract or some consenting agreement made with full disclosure between it and the one upon whom demands for specific performance are made. The government is required to enter the contract or commercial agreement into evidence by due process before trying to get the court to enforce its statutory demands. Every so-called city, county, State or Federal government entity (courts, police, taxing agencies, etc.) you can think of are listed on manta.com which belongs to Dun and Bradstreet and are traded on the stock market. Real governments do not trade on the stock market. Governments are supposed to provide public services.

System, abbreviated as DUNS or D-U-N-S, is a system developed and regulated by Dun & Bradstreet (D&B), that assigns a unique numeric identifier, referred to as a "DUNS number" to a single business entity. DUNS users include the European Commission, the United Nations and the United States government.

Why NOT to Incorporate a Town

There is presently a drive on to get small unincorporated towns to incorporate themselves as franchises of bankrupt Counties and States of States organizations There was even such an effort to try to incorporate my own small hometown, Big Lake, Alaska.

It failed miserably because there are too many savvy millionaires who live here and who know the scam, plus they don't want to pay for any more government layers of unaccountable stupidity.

The perpetrators want to glom onto the assets of the unincorporated towns and counties so as to: (1) gain new assets they can borrow money against; (2) have new assets to offer their greedy Creditors as "security" on these loans.

So if you want to give up your freedom and your security and your property rights and the ownership of your private property, just agree to incorporate your village or town, and the vermin responsible will be happy to bankrupt you and seize upon your assets as free gifts and donations to their foreign government.

Does that explain by no unincorporated town or village in its right mind should ever even think about incorporating its operations?

Police Have No Duty To Protect Individuals <https://www.firearmsandliberty.com/kasler-protection.html>
The seminal case establishing the general rule that police have no duty under federal law to protect citizens is DeShaney v. Winnebago County Department of Social Services. Frequently these cases are based on an alleged "special relationship" between the injured party and the police. In DeShaney the injured party was a boy who was beaten and permanently injured by his father.

Addressing cops' confusion over 'the public duty doctrine'. While this desire to serve the public is commendable, police officers must understand that they have no obligation to protect any one individual unless a "special relationship" exists. Rather, an officer's sworn duty is to the general public.

Supreme Court ruling In a unanimous 9–0 decision released this morning, the U.S. Supreme Court sided with IJ and Tyson Timbs and ruled that the Eighth Amendment’s protection against excessive fines applies to every level of government. Writing for the majority, Justice Ginsburg states that “[p]rotection against excessive fines has been a constant shield throughout Anglo-American history for good reason: Such fines undermine other liberties. ... They can also be employed, not in service of penal purposes, but as a source of revenue.”

If the evidence is correct and no logical errors have been made, a 13th Amendment restricting lawyers from serving in government was ratified in 1819 and removed from the U.S. Constitution during the tumult of the Civil War. Since the Amendment was never lawfully repealed, it is still the Law today. The implications are enormous.

The New Hampshire Legislature was coy and subtle in their recent effort at transparency, by suggesting that the removal of Article XIII [the missing 13th Amendment] was merely an “omission” and that the fraudulent Constitutional rewrite in 1871 was intended to be used only as a corporate “mission statement” for the District of Columbia.

Under U.S. Code, the president does have the statutory authority to keep anyone out of the country, for any reason he thinks best. Per 8 USC §1182

“Whenever the President finds that the entry of any aliens or of any class of aliens into the United States would be detrimental to the interests of the United States, he may by proclamation, and for such period as he shall deem necessary, suspend the entry of all aliens or any class of aliens as immigrants or nonimmigrants, or impose on the entry of aliens any restrictions he may deem to be appropriate.”

Yes, the president has the authority to do exactly what trump is describing. And by the way, this kind of thing has happened before , Read The Congressional Records 14th
