

ND FARM MANAGEMENT EDUCATION

Highlights from the 2017 North Dakota Averages

“Our Mission is to provide lifelong learning opportunities in economic and financial management for adults involved in the farming and ranching business.”

Average net farm income for the 457 farms that were included in the 2017 North Dakota Farm and Ranch Business Management Report was $88,026 compared to $126,752 in 2016. Median net farm income, probably a better measure of the typical farm, was $50,998, compared to $83,683 in 2016 and $18,999 in 2015. Yields were down across the state and commodity prices were lower than 2016. Cattle prices rebounded from 2016, pushing the average net return to $184.58 per cow in 2017 as compared to $60.06 per cow in 2016.

Rate of return on assets was 3.2% and rate of return on equity averaged 2.7%, discontinuing last years' trend where rate of return on equity was greater than the rate of return on assets. This illustrates a higher level of debt and indicates borrowed money is returning less to the operations. Term debt coverage ratio dropped from a 1.68 to a 1.43 in 2017. This ratio represents the ability of the average farmer to make payments with money left over for family living costs. While there were dollars left over this year for family living, the margin wasn't as comfortable as 2016. Working capital for the group averaged $233,815 compared to $221,250 in 2016. Working capital as compared to gross farm revenues increased from 33% in 2016 to 36% in 2017, putting most operations in a slightly better position over the previous year in this measure.

The average farm size was 2,427 acres, of which 490 were pasture. The average farmer was 45.8 years of age and has farmed for 21.5 years.

The average nonfarm income for 2017 for the farms enrolled in the North Dakota Farm and Ranch Business Management Programs was $35,451 compared to $36,008 in 2016.

* Highlights from the 2017 Red River Valley Averages

Overview for Red River Valley

The Red River Valley overview includes information from 235 farms located up and down the Red River Valley. Net Farm Income decreased from $143,489 in 2016 to $102,783 in 2017. Factors that caused this year's net farm income to decrease include lower than average soybean and corn yields in some areas, lower commodity prices, decrease in government payments due to slightly higher than average yields in 2016, and lower sugar beet payments received in the southern valley. The average farmer in the Red River Valley was 48 years of age with 24 years of farming experience. The average size farm was 1,689 acres and farmers spent an average of $877,025 on input costs, a 15% increase from 2016. Machinery purchased was up $13,466 from 2016, but the farms also sold an average of $11,074 of machinery.

Cow/Calf producers rebounded somewhat in 2017. The average saw a gross margin of $768 per cow with a return of $130.59 per cow. Compared to 2016, this was an increase of $84.80/cow in gross margin and an increase of $41.25/cow in net return. Cost per cow also showed an increase of $43.55. Higher returns could be attributed to increased prices as the average herd received $159.09/cwt in 2017, 19.8% higher than the $132.82/cwt received in 2016. Backgrounding enterprises in 2017 had 22.3% lower returns than in 2016 with the average net return of $50.39/cwt produced compared to 2016 average returns of $64.84/cwt produced.

Highlights from the 2017 North Dakota Region 4 Averages

Overview for Region 4

The western region saw an improvement in commodity prices for both crops and livestock in 2017; however, the drought took its toll. With the reduced yields came higher breakeven prices than in 2016. For ranchers, they received higher prices, $165.16/cwt in 2017 compared to $131.32 in 2016, higher feed costs drove expenses per cow higher. While the net return increased from years previous, a large portion of this return per head was driven by in-come from cull sales.
