INNOVIOR CONSTRUCTION CELEBRATES RECOGNITION FROM GREATER VANCOUVER BOARD OF TRADE

Vancouver-based construction company, Innovior Construction Inc, announced today that it has been recognized as a finalist for the Greater Vancouver Board of Trade's Business Reinvention Awards. With its inaugural awards, Greater Vancouver Board of Trade is recognizing companies that have reinvented, adapted and shown resiliency in the face of challenges and barriers during 2020.

Innovior Construction has been selected as a finalist in the Healthy Workplace Award category which highlights businesses that have shown outstanding efforts to support their employees, customers and the broader community during a difficult 2020.

Nick Trahan and Karen Roosen, founders of Innovior Construction, are proud of Innovior's recognition as a finalist for such an important award. This award is the result of the collective effort of the entire company with consistent hard work and determination working to change the face of the construction industry. Not only is Innovior changing the way projects are built, but also changing the approach of the industry towards its workers.

The winners will be announced at a virtual ceremony on February 26 with Mary Ng, federal minister of small business, export promotion and international trade; and Ravi Kahlon, provincial minister of jobs, economic recovery and innovation.

ABOUT INNOVIOR CONSTRUCTION

Innovior's mission is to create spaces that revolutionize the way people work, heal and learn. Founded on integrated project delivery using DIRTT's technology and sustainable construction, the outcome of the spaces Innovior builds is critical to the community at large and its well being. With healthy motivated individuals working on projects in its community, the positive impact to outcomes is manifested. Additionally, by truly understanding and embracing the importance and value of the construction teams, Innovior gives the construction industry a new lens on the well being and care for its people.
