

Distance

Though the distance between us is greater by far
Than the measure that once lay between,
I think of the light I behold from a star;
The space it has traveled unseen.

I think of the light that shined forth from your eyes,
Those special to me from back when.
I look toward a day when that light realized
Forms its image in my eyes again.

The world continues its course and its plan,
Time and Space are but phantoms, it's true.
I know in my heart we will meet once again;
The bindings of distance undo.

TMJ April, 1987