-Kids-

will be served medium-rare unless specified. no, really, your children are absolutely welcome here. over the years we have been blasted for not catering to children. no children's menu. no high-chairs, etc. allow us an explanation. we consider our establishment to be a bar, a bar with food, but not a family restaurant. from day one we envisioned a place where adults can go to get loose and have a good time. this is the environment that we try to foster. if you are comfortable bringing your children here, then by all means do so. just don't slam us because you want the bird to be chuck e. cheese.

so with no real kid's menu, if your kid doesn't want a burger or your brat don't want a brat, we are happy to make a grilled cheese, or even a mini-schnitzel, if we are not too busy. we ask only that you mind your children. kids screaming and running around uncontrolled are many things, appropriate not being one of them. first, it is dangerous for your child. there are drunk people with fragile glass staggering around, deck stairs to fall down, and swinging kitchen doors. secondly, there are wait-staff having a hard enough time without kids underfoot. and lastly it is simply not nice or fair for many customers that may not think your kid is as cute as you do. if parents could just try to be mindful of the following three little guidelines, everyone can have a great time at the bird.

- 1) if you cannot see your child...you are messing up.
- 2) if you cannot hear your child, but other people can...you are messing up.
- 3) if you can't see your child, but can hear him/her...you are really messing up.
