

Somebody Shoulda Told Me

By Remon & Candace Tuck

Compromising, the most effective way, will require you to have a mature mindset. Please understand that compromising is more difficult when your marriage is being held hostage by hurt, anger, and unhappiness. So, if any of these exist, it is important to communicate to discover the root of the issue so that you can maintain a sense of happiness in your relationship. When you compromise remember you are making your husband or wife happy. Both parties have to be willing to give a little so that you can have balance. When you find yourselves in a disagreement and a decision has to be made, sit down and calmly state your point-of-view.

Ladies, realize it will not always go our way. And fellas, although we have the final say, listen to your wife because God gave us her to bring wisdom. As a man, you should want to compromise to make your Queen happy. Couples have to view everything from two perspectives, theirs and their spouses. Love your spouse enough to be happy in seeing them happy even when things don't go your way.