This or That Prevention - Social Distancing

Instead of this: Only washing your hands on occasion, or just using water.

Do That: Wash your hands regularly! Use water and soap and wash for at least 20 seconds.

Instead of this: Sneezing into your hands (ew!).

Do That: Sneeze into your arm or a tissue.

Instead of this: Checking social media or cable news 24/7.

Do That: Continue to stay informed, but also disconnect on occasion. Try reading a new book or trying meditation. Mental health is important.

Instead of this: Going straight to the doctor or urgent care when you're feeling under the weather.

Do That: Believing every rumor you see online or using non-reputable sources.

Instead of this: Believing every rumor you see online or using non-reputable sources.

Do That: Use reputable sources!

This or That Preparedness - Social Distancing

Instead of This: Panicking and buying enough toilet paper for a year.

Do That: Don't panic. Just make sure you have enough food and medication for a possible 14 day quarantine period.

Instead of This: Going to the grocery store every day.

Do That: Go once a week, during non-peak times.

Instead of This: Going out if you're an older adult or have a pre-existing medical condition.

Do That: Ask your family, friends, or neighbors if they can get your groceries or run errands for you.

Instead of This: Being mean or rude to service workers, healthcare professionals, or others on the front lines of the outbreak.

Do That: Be kind! We're all in this together and kindness is more important than ever.

It is imperative that all businesses, organizations, and residents follow social distancing practices to the best of their abilities," stated Ron H. Graham, Health Commissioner. "Ohio Governor Mike DeWine and Health Director Dr. Amy Acton have taken unprecedented steps to curb the spread of illness, and while our way of life will change in the short-term, these steps are necessary to protect the most vulnerable in our community and save lives. Ward 3 Councilman Greetings, Eastlake. This is a difficult article to write because we have to submit articles in advance to make publication. As I am writing this, many events have already been cancelled or postponed, while schools and businesses have been required to close over the Coronavirus outbreak. I do not know how this situation will change by the time you read this. I will just say the following.

As a lifelong resident, I believe in our community's ability to put differences aside and help those in need. I've seen it many times. This is just on a larger scale, but we will get through this. I know hardships are presented due to the measures taken, but please know these measures are necessary to prevent hospitals from getting inundated and protect public health as much as possible. Please keep social distance to prevent transmission while also keeping an eye on our families, friends and neighbors to insure health and safety. Let's do our best to help those who are losing income and when we have the chance, help our small businesses who will be losing business for a time.

We owe a debt of gratitude to those who work tirelessly to protect our health and safety including our police and firefighters, medical professionals, and all workers cannot take time off. They are all putting themselves out there to insure things continue functioning properly. Thanks also to our leadership who took swift, decisive action to slow the spread of the pandemic. And, of course, thanks to all of you for your cooperation and understanding. Please remember, we are all in this together and we will get through because we care and will help each other.

Bankruptcy 101:

Overcoming the Fear of Filing Bankruptcy

Filing bankruptcy is scary on many fronts. I know because I'm a bankruptcy lawyer and I talk to bankruptcy clients every day. I also have had financial problems like most everyone else and I was scared at the time. I thought about filing bankruptcy. I must admit it was a very frightening thought. I really believed that my life for all practical purposes would end in humiliation and despair. I believed that everyone would look at me and talk and snicker. That it would be in the newspapers and my parents would disown me and that I would die lonely because no one would ever speak to me again. Forget about ever getting another date. They probably wouldn't even let me adopt a cat.

At that time, I couldn't put my finger on why the thought of filing Bankruptcy was so HORRIFYING. Since that time, I have had the opportunity to speak with many people who have gone through the bankruptcy process and now I know why the idea of bankruptcy is so scary. I also know now why it is such an irony that the solution to so many scary things causes us such apprehension. The reason is simple. It is an assault on our pride. A blow to our ego.

There is no other reason to fear such a remarkably effective solution to real tragedy (like, say, having your wages garnished, being sued, losing your home, not having money to eat, dying from stress, going insane, etc.) Pride is one of the seven deadly sins because it causes us to do things that we should not. It also causes us NOT TO DO THINGS THAT WE SHOULD.

Based on my conversations with many people I have concluded that bankruptcy is looked at in the negative. I know people are reading this last line and thinking "duh-yeah!" But in my world, I don't think it is so straight forward. Because I see fearful, distressed, sad, stressed out, suicidal, miserable, guilt ridden, angry people made better by bankruptcy. Not just a little better, either. A lot better. The "I can't believe it, but I actually have peace of mind!" kind of better. I run into people at the grocery store who tell me life has never been so good. I wouldn't normally believe them because I knew them. They were our clients. They were people who came into our office eight months earlier depressed, hopeless, despondent, fearful and beaten. But now their faces, their demeanor and their attitudes are hardly recognizable. They have been restored to sanity.

They have been healed and they know peace. That past life that was so unmanageable, painful and, seemingly, spiraling downward out of control did not crash and burn. Something took the controls and managed to pull it back up seconds before the fiery fateful collision-moments before they came to that dark place that is not known but dreaded. That something was the law of Bankruptcy!

It was probably something greater that took them to the acceptance that bankruptcy was the only thing that could right their lives at this point. But that is beyond this discussion. Everybody's bottom is at a different level. The only question is how much suffering a person endures and makes their family endure until they embrace the solution. I am a simple man. I think financial problems have a simple solution. That solution is bankruptcy.

So, no, you are not a loser if you need bankruptcy and use it. You will be a winner. Trust me, I know. We are not dealing with kids or irresponsible adults who went crazy at the mall and want to skate out of debt. Not in this world. Not now. In these times, people are struggling to eat; to drive to work; to live. And, no, you are not the only one who is in this much financial trouble. You only think you are because they don't make television sitcoms about the pretty people living in California hanging out at the beach filling out their bankruptcy petition. YOUR FINANCIAL PROBLEM IS TEMPORARY. YOU WILL RECOVER. You just need a little breathing room. If you let it cause you health problems- those may be permanent. General Motors is a prime example. They went bankrupt in 2009. In 2011 they made record profits.

So, what's my point? Don't listen to other people's opinions because they are only parading their ignorance. Don't be proud because pride is the mask of a fool. Don't be afraid because there is a solution to financial distress. Don't think you're the only one because that's just other people lying to you. Don't be idle because if you are, you'll never be free from the financial craziness, harassment, emotional turmoil and debt collector head games. And do be positive because winning is a state of mind not a state of financial wealth. Get your peace of mind back!

CELEBRATING 35 YEARS OF EXCELLENT SERVICE!

National Diabetes Prevention Program

According to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention, approximately 88 million American adults—more than 1 in 3—have prediabetes. Of those with prediabetes, more than 80% do not know they have it.

It's important to talk to your doctor about getting your blood sugar tested if you have any of the risk factors for prediabetes, which include but are not limited to:

- Being overweight
- Being 45 years or older
- Having a parent, brother, or sister with type 2 diabetes
- Being physically active less than 3 times a week
- Had gestational diabetes or gave birth to a baby weighing more than 9lbs.

• Having polycystic ovary syndrome.

If you have prediabetes, the CDC's National Diabetes Prevention Program has a behavioral change program that can help you make lifestyle changes to prevent or delay type 2 diabetes and other serious health problems.

The program begins with 16 core sessions offered in a group setting over a 6-month period. In these sessions, you will receive training to make realistic changes in your diet and exercise and provided with strategies to control your weight. A specially trained coach will help motivate you.

Once you complete the core sessions, you will have six more months of follow-up sessions to help you maintain healthy habits and an additional twelve months of ongoing maintenance sessions if you meet certain weight loss and attendance goals during the first year.

The program is limited to Medicare Part B beneficiaries who meet the specific guidelines for the program. You can find details at www.cdc.gov/diabetes/prevention and ask your health care provider to provide you with a referral. If you are eligible, you will pay nothing for these services.

You can also find more information on Medicare's coverage for diabetes in a Medicare publication, Diabetes Supplies, Services and Prevention Programs. It explains in detail coverage for diabetes medication, equipment, supplies, insulin pumps, therapeutic shoes, medical nutritional therapy services and more. For your copy of this publication you can go online to www.Medicare.gov/publication or call 1-800-Medicare to request a copy.

Blackbrook Audubon will present "The Problem with Plastic" by Jill Bartolotta 7:00 p.m. Tuesday, April 21 at Penitentiary Glen Reservation.

Ninety-six percent of the trash found on beach cleanups along the Great Lakes is plastic, most of it identified as single-use. Its presence is wreaking havoc on ecosystems, the safety of our food and drinking water, and the economy.

"The Problem with Plastic"
