Reunification Services

Family-based services designed to re-establish and repair relationships that may have been damaged due to family conflict or periods of absence. There are progressive steps in reunification including readiness assessment; individual preparation and education around emotional, cognitive, and behavior regulation and management; coaching during supervised visitation; and planning for sustainability and generalization.

Co-Parenting Counseling

Educational interventions that address communication, normalizing of emotions, reducing stress and strengthening support, and developing and maintaining a relationship with a co-parent that yields a nurturing and healthy environment for children.

Juvenile Decertification

An evaluation ordered by the court or upon referral by defense attorney to contribute to the court's decision about where youth should be adjudicated. The evaluation considers the youth's amenability to treatment and which treatments and what timeframe are recommended. Court testimony available.

Competency

An evaluation regarding individuals' competence to stand trial or make financial, treatment or participate in sexual activities.

Child Welfare/ Dependency

Evaluations of parenting fitness and attachment and evaluations of children's psychological needs with specific, detailed recommendations for treatment services. Consultation on Family Service Plans or both attorney and parents. Court testimony available.

Experience

Dr. Howard Rosen is a well-respected and sought out expert forensic psychologist with over 30 years of experience in intervention and placement services, and preventative and intervention evidence-based treatments. Dr. Rosen has developed new competencies around visitation, therapeutic visitation and assessing parent and child bonds to help courts make custody decisions.

Referrals

Referrals are accepted by order of the court, attorneys or a child protective agency that has custody of the child. Self referrals are welcome.
