

Doctor Ivan Del Valle is an International Business Transformation Executive with broad senior leadership experience in strategy and management consulting at top Firms like Accenture & Capgemini. He led the data integration for one of the largest touchless planning & fulfillment implementations in the world for a $346B health-care company. Proudly born and raised in the beautiful Caribbean Island of Puerto Rico, he currently resides with his beloved wife and Cavalier King Charles Spaniels in the United States in the historical district area of Charleston, South Carolina.

He holds a Ph.D. in Law degree from the Apsley Business School in London, UK, where he researched the law and regulations related to the legal aspects of blockchain-driven international trade traceability in sustainable food chains. During his Master of Laws studies, he acquired extensive expertise in Corporate Governance & Environmental Law while developing a legal governance, risk, and compliance framework on precision agriculture as an alternative path to sustainable farming without the use of genetic modification.

In addition to his legal qualifications, Dr. Del Valle holds an MBA from the University of The People in Pasadena, California, a Master in Data Science & Analytics from the prestigious Nebrija University in Madrid, Spain, and a dual Master degree in Consumer Neuroscience from UNIR Mexico and UNIR Spain. He is currently pursuing the final stage of a second doctoral degree in Business Administration from the University Benito Juarez Garcia in Puebla, Mexico with a thesis focused on optimal product marketing through automated attributes selection based on predictive AI on market intelligence and consumer neuroscience factors.

Dr. Del Valle lectures at Apsley Business School London in International & Comparative Law, Corporate Governance, Environmental Law, IT Law, Strategic Management, and Organizational Theory, and is a frequent panel participant on leading-edge international multi-industry conferences. His recent published work on topics such as IT Law and Blockchain-driven international trade traceability have ranked #1 new release books in Amazon in the Business Law category.

As the UQMI Director of Legal Affairs, his responsibilities include:

- Overseeing legal matters related to the organization's operations and activities.
- Ensuring compliance with relevant laws, regulations, and industry standards.
- Monitoring and addressing legal risks and liabilities.
- Providing guidance on legal issues affecting the organization's certification programs and relationships with partners and stakeholders.
- Collaborating with external legal counsel as necessary.

Dr. Ivan Del Valle can be reached via LinkedIn at <https://www.linkedin.com/in/enterprise-solutions>