A Note from Rick: Markets at TLA on Tuesday were very consistent with the last couple of weeks. There is just very little change in prices in any of our markets recently. The one change we have seen is in the number of cattle coming to market over the last few weeks. With such beautiful weather and the Fall Harvest starting to get under way this is somewhat justified, but I do look for the volume of trade to pick up through the Fall season as it normally does. I don't really see or expect any big changes in prices, but maybe something out there will develop and surprise us. We had our first annual Morgan Classic on Saturday and things went very smooth. We had a nice line up of horses and a good crowd to support the sale. Looking forward to growing this sale in the future. I think with the interest and support that we had for our first sale and the fact that it was kind of a last minute idea this summer, it will do just that. Well, I've seen several Livestock producers in full swing on the silage harvest and I want to wish everyone a safe and plentiful harvest season. Our Fall Frenzy Buggy Horse and Pony Sale is on the 19th of this month and we are taking consignments now. Hope to see you at TLA!
