A Mathematical Puzzle

Dear Friends,

There is so much we can learn from our Torah. Of all the subjects we probably expect not to find in it, however, is economics. And yet, it seems to me that there is a clear economic perspective to be found there. In so many ways its teachings seek to create a community of rough economic equality. Its vision is a leveling one. It seems to do everything it can to eliminate the possibility of some people having a great deal and others having far less. This is a question very much before American society these days. We call it the income gap. In reality it is a wealth gap. It is about the disparity between the resources and quality of life of the very few and that of the many. Despite our pride in the notion that America is a society that can be a light to the world ("a shining city on the hill", President Regan called us), we have the dubious honor of leading the world in this category.

The month of January puts me in mind of this because it was exactly thirty years ago, on January 8, 1987, that the Dow Jones market index passed the 2,000 point for the first time. As I write this toward the end of December it looks like that index may well pass the 20,000 point in January 2017. The value of the American stock market has risen ten times in the past thirty years. Which brings me to my mathematical question. Are you ten times better off than you were thirty years ago? There is a good chance that you might not be. But if you are not, then we might want to ask, "who is". Has that great increase in wealth been shared equally through our society? Or has the windfall been reserved for a privileged few? (I guess that was a rhetorical question. We all know the answer.)

Which circles us back to the Torah perspective of how the economic life of a community ought to be structured. Our Bible clearly advocates for a significant measure of economic equality. America is said to be the most religious country on earth. It is a nation in which we hear a great deal about "Judeo-Christian values". It is a nation where religious groups seek to interject religious teachings into every dimension of the life of our society (public subsidy of religious schools, abortion rights, gay marriage, the list goes on and on). And yet on this very fundamental issue—how our economy is structured—there is deafening silence. For a nation filled with "Bible believers" this is a striking incongruity. I would wish that our religious discourse was as obsessed with economic justice as it is with who could use what bathroom. Does this sound naïve? It is new year's. I am entitled to my new year's wish.

Along with the wish that this (secular) new year is one of health and contentment for you and your loved ones.

A Bright New Year

January 1st, New Year's Day, is celebrated one way or another by everyone who uses the most widely used civil calendar. Unlike the secular holidays that we have just celebrated and the separate celebrations of renewal that people of many faiths will observe in the spring, this New Year unites us all in a new beginning.

At Shir Chadash, we are ready for this opportunity with all the elements in place for a stellar year. We have 7 new member families (and another planning to join right when you will be reading this) adding vitality to our congregation. We have 6 children beginning to learn Hebrew this year, reminding us to focus on our future. We have 7 women working toward group B'not Mitzvah this May, an energetic force! Our membership is extraordinary in its level of involvement, not only in specific programs, but, more important, in our commitment to Jewish life and to each other. Our clergy will continue to guide us through the opportunities of 2017 with expertise and compassion. I am hopeful and grateful that those who are able will continue to be financially generous, fulfilling critical, practical realities.

A prayer written by Ruth F. Brin, a favorite of mine, contains the words,

*"Every day that You continue me in life
You create my world afresh."*

My heartfelt thanks goes to all of you who made 2016 a good year for us and brought us to this point. I look forward to making the most of our fresh opportunities with you in the coming year.

L'Shalom

Jane

Member's Corner

We were all wretched refuse, homeless and tempest tossed once. Had my grandparents not made it to our shores, I would have died in the Holocaust. There would be no comfy house in Stormville, no Hannah, Noah, Jonah and Emma. No silly cats and annoying dogs. No strong-brewed tea and comfy chairs. All the little things that make up my little life, insignificant in the big story but so important to me, is due to the Mother of Exiles welcoming my ancestors. Thank you Mother, thank you America, for allowing my people into your community and letting me have my life of relative luxury and small comforts.

"The New Colossus"

Not like the brazen giant of Greek fame,
With conquering limbs astride from land to land;
Here at our sea-washed, sunset gates shall stand
A mighty woman with a torch, whose flame
Is the imprisoned lightning, and her name
Mother of Exiles. From her beacon-hand
Glows world-wide welcome; her mild eyes command
The air-bridged harbor that twin cities frame.
"Keep, ancient lands, your storied pomp!" cries she
With silent lips. "Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door!"

A Message from Sue Marcoe, Education Enrichment Coordinator

OUR STUDENTS ARE STILL EXPLORING ISRAEL

Students really enjoyed their “flight” to Israel and their “ride” on the Glass Bottom Boat in Eilat. Due to our snow day, their trip to Jerusalem was delayed, but they’ll “get” there January 7th. Students will connect Chanukah and Jerusalem, and will leave papers with their prayers for this new secular year in the Kotel, also known as the Western Wall. They will also briefly visit Haifa on January 21st, before “returning” home. If your children haven’t tried our religious school, now is a perfect time to encourage them to come for a taste—“guest students” are welcome!

B'Shalom,

the New York Times Bestseller:
“THE NEW JIM CROW”
by Michelle Alexander

“Once in a great while a book comes along that changes the way we see the world and helps to fuel a nationwide social movement. The New Jim Crow is such a book. Praised by Harvard Law professor Lani Guinier as “brave and bold,” this book directly challenges the notion that the election of Barack Obama signals a new era of colorblindness. With dazzling candor, legal scholar Michelle Alexander argues that “we have not ended racial caste in America; we have merely redesigned it.” By targeting black men through the War on Drugs and decimating communities of color, the U.S. criminal justice system functions as a contemporary system of racial control—relegating millions to a permanent second-class status—even as it formally adheres to the principle of colorblindness. In the words of Benjamin Todd Jealous, president and CEO of the NAACP, this book is a “call to action.”

Called “stunning” by Pulitzer Prize-winning historian David Levering Lewis, “invaluable” by the Daily Kos, “explosive” by Kirkus, and “profoundly necessary” by the Miami Herald, this updated and revised paperback edition of The New Jim Crow, now with a foreword by Cornel West, is a must-read for all people of conscience.”

Israeli Salad by Sandy Lash Serves 8

4 firm ripe tomatoes (use good grape tomatoes if good large ones are not available)
2 peeled English cucumbers (peeled in strips is nice)
1 green pepper
1 yellow pepper (or red)
1 red onion, chopped or slice thin
4-6 tablespoons chopped flat-leaved parsley
Zest and juice of 1 lemon (about 4 tablespoons)
6—8 tablespoons of extra-virgin olive oil
Zatar (Middle Eastern spice blend of sumac, thyme, sesame and salt)

Cut all the vegetables in small dice or pieces and put into bowl with onions and parsley.

Zest lemon into the bowl of vegetables and juice the lemon.

Whisk lemon juice and olive oil together with salt and pepper. (start with  $\frac{1}{2}$  t of salt and  $\frac{1}{4}$  t of pepper and taste. Taste for salt, pepper, lemon and oil until the balance pleases you. It should be on the tart side and with enough salt.

When ready to serve, toss salad with the dressing and sprinkle Zatar on top.

Note: The amounts of the different vegetables can vary according to what's available and taste.

Olives and feta cheese can be added as well as different vegetables like radishes, beets, scallions instead of onions, arugula, and so on.
