

John Jamieson

John Jamieson has come a long way from his days of being a high school failure and a college dropout. John has been a successful businessman for over 22 years and has launched several companies from nothing more than an idea and a goal. He has spoken to hundreds of audiences all over the United States and Canada on the subjects of Business, Real Estate, and Wealth Creation. John has contributed articles to Global Banking and Finance Review and is currently a weekly contributor to AOL's DailyFinance; which offers the latest financial news and advice from leading business and finance experts.

John started in business with no money, no job, and no credit and bought his first piece of investment real estate at the age of 21. Since then he has gone on to purchase tens of millions of dollars of real estate. John also has been involved with tens of millions of dollars of real estate transactions as an agent working with investors from all over the world. He has a unique ability to train people how to start with very little and achieve amazing results. He is currently the owner of Perpetual Wealth Systems which is a national wealth strategy company working with people and businesses on a better business model for automatically and systematically creating tax free wealth.

John also is the owner of a real estate investment and sales company in the Metro Detroit area that works with out of area investors to help them build what he calls "real estate cash flow machines". John has been a lifelong resident of Metro Detroit and puts his years of experience with that real estate market to use for investors from all over the globe. John is a former top selling agent and corporate sales trainer for the Century 21 and RE/MAX franchises.

He is the bestselling author of the book entitled "The Perpetual Wealth System". John is also the author of several training programs on wealth creation and has several live events throughout the year in his home town of Detroit Michigan; where he still resides with his wife and two sons.