

Nora Levin

Nora Levin is a highly sought after performer and instructor. She began training at Next Step Dance in her home state of North Carolina, and she gained a wealth of performing experience at a young age through her participation in regional talent competitions, dance conventions, competitive dance companies, and various professional dance teams. She pursued her Bachelor of Arts in Dance at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, and was quickly accepted into the very selective Dance Theater Program at the American Music and Dramatic Academy in New York City.

While studying at AMDA, she was chosen by the faculty as a dance captain, and since graduation Nora has signed with MSA Models and has achieved great success as a company member, studio instructor, convention guest faculty member, featured dancer in film and television actor. Prior to returning home, Nora was a member of the New York City based dance company VashtiDance Theater with performances at Alvin Ailey, PeriDance, and the United Nations.

She has been featured in Grammy award winner Yami Bolos music video “Love Keeping Us Together” and J.Cobb, a new breakout artist, music video “Dream”. Nora has appeared in the FX network’s Royal Pains and a national television campaign for Toyota. She was a WNBA dancer and performed in the nationally televised Macy’s Thanksgiving Day Parade and Outback Bowl.

Nora has continued her commitment to growth and excellence and continues to take class from and flourish under the tutelage of many master instructors such as Broadway legend Mary Ann Lamb, SYTYCD star Alexie Agdeppa, Boston Ballet soloist Dusty Button, and tap legend Mike Minery. Nora has performed as a dancer and vocalist in numerous productions in New York City and traveled extensively to teach workshops and private lessons to the next generation of dancers.
