Extraordinary Ministers of Holy Communion (Part Three)

Extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion should always be dressed in a manner consistent with the dignity of their role during the liturgical celebration. A neat appearance and reverential deportment are essential.

While the liturgical vesture common to ministers of any rank is the alb and cincture, in the case of extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion, to distinguish their role from the ordinary lay ministries, in the Archdiocese of Portland in Oregon it is preferred that they not wear distinctive vesture such as albs.

Extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion should not process in the entrance procession. They should normally sit in the congregation with their families and the other faithful until the time when they approach the altar to assist in the distribution of Holy Communion, and then return to their earlier places at the end of the Communion Rite.

Extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion may not assist at the Preparation of the Gifts (including distributing unconsecrated hosts among ciboria or pouring wine into chalices), in the fractio panis, or in the purification of sacred vessels.

It is forbidden for Extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion to open the tabernacle or bring the sacred hosts to or from the tabernacle during the Sacred Liturgy, unless the priest is in some way physically impeded.

Extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion approach the altar as the priest finishes receiving Communion. After the priest has concluded his own Communion, he distributes Communion to the extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion, with the assistance of the deacon, and then hands the sacred vessels to them for the distribution of Holy Communion to the people. Extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion should not take the sacred vessels from the altar themselves, but should be handed them by the priest or deacon.

Extraordinary ministers of Holy Communion are deputed for the sole purpose of distributing Holy Communion. They are not to administer blessings or lay hands upon people who approach them who do not wish to receive Communion, even if they are requested to do so. In the celebration of Holy Mass there is only one blessing, imparted to the entire congregation by the principal celebrant at the end of the celebration.
