

The FACES OF PARKINSON'S

We are looking for your stories! We are going to compile a book called “The Faces of Parkinson's”. A book telling the tales of your struggle with Parkinson's, tell us how it may have made a huge impact on your life's work or hobbies, an account of what you have done differently in your life because of the disease! Maybe you have an interesting family history to share? Perhaps your family or caregiver has an interesting or moving story to tell? Let's find out more about our Parkinson's Family here in the Midwest!

We will compile the stories into a book and have it available at the next Parkinson's Family Night September 2019. In addition, Family Night will produce a video of the stories and interviews for the evening!

We have an experienced interviewer lined up to help you re-tell your story! Photos and video clips will be used for this project! If you are not sure if your story is interesting our interviewer can ask the right questions to help put your story together! They can be informative, educational, funny or sad....

As an example; we are looking at an artist and talking with her to find out how her art technique has changed with her Parkinson's.
