

75th Anniversary

For three-quarters of a century, PACD has worked cooperatively to help conserve the natural resources within the district. Seventy-five years of conservation

- ◆ We thank the ranchers and agricultural producers who have stewarded the land, benefitting the entire community. We are proud to have helped inform and assist with the management of their soil and water resources.
- ◆ We thank the small acreage landowners who continually seek to improve their properties. They have improved water delivery systems and soil health.
- ◆ We thank the residents of Atlantic City, Ethete, Fort Washakie, Hudson, Jeffery City, and Lander who have helped to conserve water, reduce waste, and minimized the effects of flooding.
- ◆ We thank the federal land management agencies for working with us as a cooperating agency to ensure the district interests are addressed in their planning and management of federal lands.
- ◆ We thank the federal agriculture agencies for working as partners in assisting landowners with conservation investments and emergency disaster recovery.
- ◆ We thank the federal infrastructure and emergency agencies for helping with flood planning and recovery.
- ◆ We thank the federal and state wildlife agencies for working as partners to enhance and conserve habitat that benefits fisheries, wildlife and the people of Wyoming.
- ◆ We thank the tribal councils for partnering to improve soil, water and wildlife habitat resources.
- ◆ We thank the state agencies for being partners in improving range conditions, creating living snow fences, promoting soil health, and conserving and managing our water resources.
- ◆ We thank the nongovernmental organizations for partnering and working together on issues pertinent to our natural resources.
- ◆ We thank the educators who have invited us to share information about soils, range, and water management.
- ◆ We thank the past and present supervisors who voluntarily serve to provide local knowledge and leadership for the conservation of our soil and water resources.

We sincerely thank you and feel honored to have served our community.

Thank you
