A CLOSER LOOK AT JULIE D'AUBIGNY,
FRANCE'S CROSS-DRESSING, SWORD-FIGHTING, BISEXUAL OPERA SINGER

BY ELEANOR OSBORN

Born in 17th century France, Julie d'Aubinby was far from the traditional French woman. Her father, presumably wishing he had had a son rather than a daughter, trained Julie in swordsmanship, hunting, and riding alongside the royal pages. For this reason, it wasn't long before Julie became renowned as a teenage fencing prodigy. As a young woman, she ran away to tour France with her swordsman fiancé until she grew bored of him, her attention shifting to the daughter of a local merchant. Upon the merchant's discovery of his daughter's "unorthodox" behaviors, however, the merchant decided to ship the young girl off to a convent. This, of course, did little to stop Julie-- she simply followed her girlfriend to the nunnery, and the two proceeded to indulge in secret liaisons within the convent, ultimately escaping by burning the whole place down.

Not even four months later, the young Julie (who had yet to turn twenty) turned her gaze to yet another pursuit: the opera. Under the stage name of Mademoiselle Maupin, Julie took the theatre of France by storm with her beautiful voice and unconventional lifestyle. After one particularly nasty fight, La Maupin was supposed to be condemned to death for dueling, but King Louis XIV was so impressed by her that she was pardoned instead. Little is known about La Maupin's later life, only that she died around thirty-seven from unknown causes.

"Brave Bessie" How one Woman of Color changed avitation history

BY AUGUST WARREN

As black history month is about to begin, we would like to recognize a little known woman who decided to fly high with her dreams. Bessie Coleman was born January 26th, 1892 in Atlanta, Texas. Born of Native-American and African-American heritage, Coleman's parents were share-croppers. She attended a segregated school and went to college at Langston University for one term before dropping out to pursue aviation. Turned away from every flight school in the United States, Coleman saved up her money to attend flight school in France, ultimately becoming the first African-American and Native-American woman to hold an international pilot's license. Coleman was well known for her spectacular airshows before her early death in 1926. Coleman paved the way for African-Americans, Native-Americans, and women to gain recognition in the aviation industry-- it is no surprise that even now, she is known by the nickname of "Brave Bessie."

POLITICISMS

WHO SAID WHAT? TRY AND CORRECTLY MATCH THE POLITICIAN WITH THEIR QUOTE! *

A) "When the president does it, that means that it is not illegal."

B) "Our enemies are innovative and resourceful, and so are we. They never stop thinking about new ways to harm our country and our people, and neither do we."

C) "I think gay marriage should be between a man and a woman."

D) "We choose unity over division. We choose science over fiction. We choose truth over facts."

E) "Reports that say something hasn't happened are always interesting to me, because as we know, there are known knowns; there are things we know we know. We also know there are known unknowns; that is to say we know there are some things we do not know. But there are also unknown unknowns – the ones we don't know we don't know."

F) "I could be the most popular person in Europe. I could be -- I could run for any office if I wanted to, but I don't want to."

G) "I do not support a livable wage."
