Sunday Meditation

Someone once said, "If you don't like your preacher, don't criticize him; pray for him." We're quite blessed in our elders and our preacher. But, effective as they are, I'm sure that they would appreciate our prayers for divine assistance in their labors. Even the great apostle felt the need for the prayers of the churches. Paul asked the church at Rome: "Strive together with me in prayers to God for me" (Rom. 15:30). He asked the Ephesians Christians: "Pray for me that utterance may be given me in opening my mouth boldly to proclaim the mystery of the Gospel" (Eph. 6:19). Charles Spurgeon, called "the prince of preachers," once showed a church visitor his "powerroom," which he said was the source of the effectiveness of his preaching. It was a room in the basement of the church where a group of his members prayed for him day and night.
