PROTECTING LAKE GEORGE FROM INVASIVE SPECIES

by Steve Ramant

After many years of leadership by the Lake George Park Commission in protecting Lake George with 95 lake launches under contract in their successful boat inspection program, a new era may be in the works.

It is widely known by the Department of Environmental Conservation (DEC) that uninspected and potentially contaminated boats are being launched at Million Dollar Beach, Rogers Rock, and Mossy Point. These boats entering Lake George may possibly contain unwanted Aquatic Invasive Species (AIS) that may find new homes in our lake. With years of trying to keep new AIS out and thousands spent trying to control what's already in Lake George, this is not good.

A press release should be forthcoming from the DEC, with new protocols for these three boat launch sites. ▣

SCHOOL BUDGET

The result of the first tax levy vote, as reported in The Press Republican, was 747 no and 558 yes. The Ticonderoga School Board then held a discussion about the budget on Tuesday, June 12, 2019 at 7 pm at the Ticonderoga HS cafeteria during their regular monthly board meeting.

The budget re-vote was held on June 18, 2019. The re-vote passed, 523 yes to 310 no. The school board then held a special board of education meeting on Tuesday, June 18, 2019 in the high school gymnasium at 8:15 pm to accept the results of the budget re-vote.

The new budget calls for an increase in the tax levy of 3.97 percent, which is below the cap of 4.6 percent. A simple majority can approve a budget that is under the cap. ▣

MCDONALD TO RETIRE

Ticonderoga Central School Superintendent John McDonald, Jr. retired on Tuesday, June 25, 2019. It was announced during a faculty meeting on Monday and the board accepted McDonald's letter of resignation on Tuesday evening.

Board President Mark Russell said McDonald, 53, was not asked to retire. The idea was brought up as a possible item to cut after voters rejected a school budget that exceeded the state's recommended tax cap.

The new budget that voters accepted required cutbacks. McDonald voiced concern that additional cuts would affect students' educations.

Several school employees took advantage of early-retirement incentives that allowed the board to trim spending. McDonald's age and service qualified him to take early retirement as well. His retirement will save the school system between $150,000 and $175,000 over the balance of his contract.

Outgoing Superintendent John McDonald, Jr. at the Hague Memorial Day Celebration, 2019

Ticonderoga High School Principal John Donohue will serve as acting superintendent until 2020. He will retain his job as principal with the assistance of former Keene Superintendent Cynthia Ford-Johnston, and Dean of Students Rick Merrill. Donohue said he will not seek the permanent superintendent's position.

The board also terminated the employment of Middle School Principal Herb Tedford and discussed changes in grade levels and athletics to save money in the future.

MADE IN HAGUE

by Pat McDonough

Made in Hague's sixth season is well underway and the shop is bursting with an abundance of local crafts!

On a recent weekend visit, I was graciously welcomed by Kayla Barbour and her pup, Leto! Kayla, a University of Kentucky graduate student in the field of Urban and Environmental Design, is doing an internship with the Ti Alliance and was volunteering at the shop.

While she opened for business and recovered her pup (which had bolted for Peggy's Point), I was able to enjoy perusing the new items being sold this year.

You'll find everything from Seddon Beaty's ceramics, to Jerry and Sue Sweeney's lazy susans and lamps, to Sandy Swanson's pinecone medallions and butterfly jewelry, to Mike Strutz's gyotaku prints and t-shirts, and so much more. It's well worth a visit!

Summer hours (through the first of September) are 11 am to 5 pm, Thursday - Monday and closed on Tuesdays and Wednesdays. Be sure to shop local! ▣

JURY TRIAL IN HAGUE

Jury pool at the Hague Community Center

For the first time in over 40 years, a jury trial was held in the Hague Town Court. Judge Leslie Midgley presided over the official procedure in the courtroom. The People vs. James Braisted was a traffic violations trial.

Jury selection took place on Monday, June 24, 2019, when a pool of about 45 Warren County residents who had been selected from government lists such as the DMV and voter registration lists, gathered at the Hague Community Center. Many in the jury pool were familiar with the case or were personal friends of the defendant. Those were all dismissed. A jury of three men and three women was selected, with one alternate.

Requested by the defendant, this jury trial started late on Monday afternoon and was completed on Tuesday. Assistant District Attorney Bob McCarty was the prosecutor and Attorney Adam Eggleston was the defense attorney.

The jury found the defendant "not guilty" on all counts. ▣

WATER QUALITY MATTERS

by Mike Strutz

“Summertime and the livin’ is easy, fish are jumpin’ and the cotton is high,” words from the song “Summertime,” by George Gershwin, first sung in the 1935 production of the opera Porgy and Bess, and later made famous by Ella Fitzgerald. Maybe we don’t have cotton but my beans are getting taller and the bass have started biting. The livin’ is easy for beans, bass, and algae. Time to be on the lookout around the shoreline for any suspicious new growths or blooms of algae on the rocks, boats, and docks. Water temperatures have recently hit the 70-degree mark, which is ideal for algae growth.

An interesting, but unfortunate, story was published by CBS News on June 28, 2019, which reported that Lake Hopatcong, the largest lake in New Jersey, and familiar to many in Hague, is experiencing an extensive Harmful Algal Bloom, or HAB. Advisories have been issued to not swim or even touch the water due to possible adverse health effects. Toxins given off by the algae have caused skin rashes in 30 people reporting these problems since the bloom began around June 17th. These toxins can also cause allergy-like reactions, flu-like symptoms, gastroenteritis, and eye irritation. And it can kill pets that drink the water or consume the algae. Best to keep them away too.

“Dedicated to Protecting the Water Quality of Lake George”

Lake Hopatcong, New Jersey's largest freshwater lake

This HAB on Lake Hopatcong was caused by cyanobacteria, which are usually bright green and can form a thick coating or mat on the surface of the water. I remember one of the saddest things I saw when I was an Environmental Engineer with the US EPA was a sick fish trying to jump out of an algae-infested river next to the leather tannery I was inspecting. For that fish, the livin’ wasn’t easy.

We are fortunate to live on a beautiful lake that has never experienced a HAB and we want to keep it that way. The state is investing $65 million to aggressively combat HABs and protect drinking water quality. Lake George is on a NYDEC HAB Priority Water Body list of 12 lakes around the state and it is the only one that has not experienced a HAB.

Skaneateles Lake, which is considered a sister lake to Lake George, has experienced a HAB each of the last two years.

Can you imagine never being able to touch Lake George? We need to do everything in our power to make sure our lake stays clean and clear by connecting to the sewer system if we can, pumping out our septic systems, and maintaining them on a regular basis, eliminating the use of fertilizers, installing shoreline and streamside buffer zones, and so forth. For more information on how you can help, please visit the Hague Water Quality Awareness Committee on Facebook or contact one of our Steering Committee members: Al Rider (Chairman), Jim Beaty, Lance Clark, Ginger Kuenzel, Josh Patchett, Steve Ramant, or me. ■

NATURALLY SPEAKING

by Connie Smith

We shovel it. We spade it. We put plants in it and we pull weeds from it. We play with it and dogs love to roll in it. It’s dirt.

Soils in the Adirondack Mountains are relatively young, according to an academic study by Colgate and Alfred Universities. Our soil was formed from sediments deposited by the last major glacial episode in the Adirondacks about 12,000 years ago. Aha! Now we know that when someone says, “You’re older than dirt,” the speaker meant that you are over 12,000 years old. What longevity you have!

The study also tells us that most of our region is covered by an acidic, sandy, low-fertility soil called a “Spodosol.”

I could have told the study’s authors all about sandy soil where only weeds flourish. I know all about low-fertile soil that needs copious amounts of environmentally friendly organic matter to feed struggling flowers. Ah! Maybe I don’t lack a green thumb...maybe the lack of plant growth in my garden is the fault of that glacier!

There is a technical difference between soil and dirt, according to geologists. Dirt is what collects in an attic’s corners and in the crevices of a wooden floor. Soil is derived from the physical and chemical weathering of rock. Depending on its source, soil may contain just a few minerals derived from a single rock type or a plethora of minerals originating from different rock types. I am glad the geologists are so specific, but it’s all dirt to me.

I have a question for the geologists: Why isn’t the household dirt in our attics and on our wood floors called dust, not dirt? Ponder that over your morning coffee. Have we been “dirting” all these years rather than “dusting?”

Whether it’s called dirt or soil, the stuff in my yard is sub-standard and shallow. If I dig down even less than a foot, my spade hits rock. Maybe I’ll just scrape away all that low-fertile soil and simply admire the good-looking glacial rock I have! ■

LOOKING BACK

W.H. Bartlett Prints, Part Two

by Pat McDonough

These are edited excerpts from Ethel Watts Andrus' notes from the April 18, 1973 program she presented to the Hague Historical Society about W.H. Bartlett's prints.

"In 1838, Bartlett made a second trip to the North America. This time he did most of his traveling in Canada, preparing sketches for "Canadian Scenery," another two-volume work produced in collaboration with Willis.

In 1831, five years prior to his first trip to the American continent, Bartlett married a Susanna Moon and they raised a family to whom he was devoted. He was unhappy that he had to spend so much time traveling in order to earn a living, as his travels included not only North America, but Ireland, Egypt and the Near East, and Western Europe. With the publication of "Canadian Scenery," he hoped that the income would provide his family with a comfortable living, but the copyright laws of the period gave him no protection from other artists and would-be artists who pirated his work.

The Narrows, Lake George, W.H Bartlett print

Bartlett himself, in the course of his career produced 28 volumes with more than a thousand engravings from his drawings, and twelve of these books he wrote as well as illustrated. When you learn that Bartlett died at the age of 45, you can imagine the prodigious amount of work he produced in his lifetime. His work had a tremendous influence on student painters of his time because copying was at the time the means of teaching art. This extensive copying has given rise to a controversy about whether Bartlett ever painted in oils, but there is no record of his having done so.

In 1854, he began his last journey to the East, but after reaching the Mediterranean Sea, he learned that unsettled conditions in the Holy Land made it impractical for him to continue his journey. He decided to return to England. During the voyage he became suddenly ill, died, and was buried at sea on September 13, 1854."

In 2019, it is a simple matter to "Google" William Henry Bartlett and unearth a wealth of information and illustrations. What remains consistent between Ethel Watts Andrus' research and today's is an appreciation for Bartlett's lasting accomplishments in an age when travel in this country was so primitive. His travels preceded the era of William Murray, who has been credited with popularizing the Adirondacks, but not until later in the 19th century.

Our appreciation should extend to Ethel Andrus, as well, for all her efforts on behalf of Hague's history lovers. ▣

TICONDEROGA HIGH SCHOOL SENIOR PROJECTS

Every year, each senior at Ticonderoga High School must do a senior project. Kimberly Powers was the senior project co-advisor. The students' expertise ranged from woodworking, maple sugar making, music composition, Wild Boar hunting, artistic expressions of racism, and more.

On June 14, 2019, Donna Levenstien, an associate broker with NLG Realty in Hague, was invited to sit on a panel with community members including Reverend Scott Tyler, Sharon Hall, Anne Westervelt, and Abigail Young, along with teachers and former students, to judge the projects at Senior Presentations Day.

Impressed by the professionalism of the students' work, Levenstien said, "I found the students who presented to be articulate and passionate about their subjects. Being asked to serve the community in this way was truly rewarding."

Caitlin Myers, a senior from Hague, exhibited the art she created for her senior project at the NLG Realty Gallery on May 23, 2019. According to art teacher Britney Shaw, more than 60 guests came to see the show.

FORT TI FAMILY PROGRAMMING

Fort Ticonderoga is debuting new opportunities for families who will be visiting the fort in July and August.

"We look forward to welcoming thousands of families this summer where the learning is easy and memories are made of historic proportions," said Fort Ticonderoga President and CEO Beth L. Hill.

The new Family Guided Tours, which take place daily at 10:40 am and 1:40 pm, lead families through the fort grounds and provide a kid-friendly overview for things to do during a visit.

Voyage to New France: A Family Adventure gives families a chance to work together to complete tasks as they explore the fort and receive rewards for helping the soldiers with their daily duties.

General admission tickets include more than 14 guided tours, weapons demonstrations, historic trades, and a soldier's life programs. Visitors receive access to the museum exhibits, the King's Garden, and Mount Defiance. Admission tickets are good the day of purchase and visitors can return the following day for free.

The 60-foot, 35-passenger boat Carillon is available for daily tours (rain or shine), field trips, sunset cruises, and charters. Tickets are onsite or online at www.fortticonderoga.org .

NEW OWNERSHIP AT ANIMAL HOSPITAL

On June 22, 2019, Dr. James and Noel Mack held an open house at the Ticonderoga Animal Hospital to welcome the new owner, Dr. Katie Alexander.

Katie and her husband, Ash, along with their children, Maven and Theo, have moved to Ticonderoga and are living in the house on the hospital property.

Noel and Jim Mack married and moved to Ticonderoga in 1978 with "a dream of becoming a part of a lovely community and to bring caring and competent veterinary service to a rural area in need of modern pet care." They have spent the last 41 years doing a wonderful job fulfilling that dream.

They are retired now and continue to live in their historic red brick home in Hague with their cat and dog. They plan to enjoy gardening, fixing up their home, and being grandparents to two young children. Noel will also spend time knitting.

Many, many thanks to the Macks for their years of service and a hearty welcome to the Alexanders! ■
