American workers are under attack

Bills have been introduced in the current congress to put in place a national right to work law which would apply to all U.S. workers, including transportation workers who are currently excluded from state right to work laws.

Right to work is WRONG for American workers.

- Right to work has nothing to do with giving workers rights or guaranteeing our jobs. It is an attack on working people and our ability to bargain for fair wages, benefits and working conditions.
- All workers do better in states that are not right to work. On average, right to work lowers wages and health care coverage and makes work places more dangerous. National right to work helps corporate power, not working people.
- Right to work unfairly lets individuals benefit from collective bargaining and union representation without doing their part to support it.
