Missionary Moments

WEEK OF JULY 16, 2017

Morning: The Gospel Online

[Eurasia] Christian worker JOE KELLEY manages a page on a multilingual website where people ask questions about the gospel. A young believer helps him translate the answers. Joe checks them because sometimes the young man's translations change the biblical meaning. Although frustrating, Joe sees it as an opportunity to teach doctrine. "He thinks he's improving the text, when most of the time he's changing the meaning," Joe said. "So we have a discussion about why it's wrong." Your generous gifts through the Cooperative Program enable Joe to answer gospel questions for this online ministry and disciple young believers through these unexpected opportunities.

Evening: Helping Reach Appalachia, Mississippi Valley with the Hope of the Gospel.

[West Virginia] Born in the coalfields of West Virginia, BILL PARKER understands the culture of the people he is working to reach as the North American Mission Board's national missionary to Appalachia and the Mississippi River Ministry. Your gifts given through the Cooperative Program help Bill mobilize Southern Baptists and their resources to respond to the spiritual and physical needs in the two regions. He does this primarily through short-term missions teams and by connecting church plants and existing churches in the regions with churches outside of them. Pray for thousands of children who are finding hope and hearing the good news thanks to receiving Send Relief Christmas backpacks this year.
