I just have to ask – where did 2015 go? Every year goes by faster and faster. Nonetheless, I hope your holiday season was filled with joy, and that 2016 brings even better things.

This issue of the BMFA newsletter contains highlights of the fall meeting on October 3rd, as well as recaps of events held between September and December, including a visit from "Abe Lincoln"!

As you have already heard, the BMFA Centennial Celebration will be held on July 23rd. The Centennial Planning Committee is organizing the event, which includes activities on the two days leading up to the big event. If you'd like to help with the planning of this momentous occasion, please send an email to Meredith Flynn at bmfaclerk@gmail.com.

Fall 2015 Meeting

October 3 was a slightly damp, overcast, and cool day, but the barn was warm and dry and there was plenty of yummy food for the 38 attendees to enjoy!

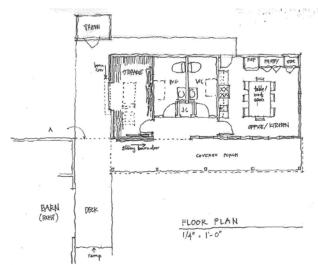

The meeting was called to order at 1:10pm by BMFA President Jack Hathaway, and a quorum was determined with 49 BMFA members represented, including proxies.

Meeting Highlights:

- Suzanne McFarland and Phil Audier are working with a few vendors to implement Wifi access at the Farm, which will be very helpful for meetings and guests.
- Bullard Genealogy: the system now needs to be updated with the past 10 years' data, and to see what opportunities there are to allow members access to the database. The membership owes a huge thanks to Jack Kingsbury for all of his work creating and maintaining the database all these years.
- Clerk Meredith Flynn reported that there are currently 12 Bronze members, 22 Silver members, and 93 Gold members
- New Gold member George Fiske of Sherborn, MA was voted into the BMFA. Welcome George!
- The Clerk also announced the birth of Charles Kingsbury Stewart, born August 6, 2015 to Esther Kingsbury Stewart and Eric Stewart of Madison, WI.

- Suzanne McFarland of the Nominating Committee, moved to vote in the following members to three year terms on the respective committees:
  - o Liz Hathaway, House
  - o Rob Emslie, Grounds
  - o Chris Thurlow, Audit
  - o Chip Thurlow, Nominating
  - Phil Audier, Jack Hathaway, and Tara Hathaway, Board of Directors
- Barn Project: Jack Hathaway distributed the latest plans from architect Shannon Scarlett for the Barn Project. The new 17'x40' building will have a storage area, janitor closet, two bathrooms, and kitchen/office space. This will greatly enhance the facilities for all of our educational and other events. Below is the proposed floor plan:

Jack, Jay McFarland, and Phil Audier will start working on the Capital Campaign Committee and welcome members to join in this planning effort. The hope is to raise much of the funding before the centennial celebration in July.

 The Board recognized Daphne Stevens and her thirty years as a BMFA director and 11 years as caretaker with her husband, Mike Stevens. Daphne's brother, Chip Thurlow, presented her with a certificate and asked that donations be made to the Trustees of Preservation in honor of her years of devoted service to the Farm.

Chip Thurlow presents Daphne Stevens with a certificate recognizing her 30+ years of service to the BMFA, and attendees give her a standing ovation. Thank you, Daphne!

Holliston Farms Day Submitted by Tara Hathaway

The Bullard Memorial Farm once again participated in the Holliston Farms Day held on Sunday, September 13. Although the weather was cloudy and drizzly, the all-day event still had a fair amount of visitors to the Farm, all of whom were appreciative of the preservation efforts of the Association and excited to participate in the day.

Ten Holliston farms participated in the open house format, each with their own style and theme. The highlight at the BMF was David Proulx, a long time Cooper at Sturbridge Village. He was dressed in period costume and demonstrated coopering - the craft of making wooden buckets. David was very knowledgeable on the subject and he kept the crowd engaged as he explained the technique and history of the craft.

Old Sturbridge Village Cooper, David Proulx, demonstrates the craft of making wooden buckets.

Chip Thurlow, Phil Audier, and Doug Hathaway gave tours of the museum and outbuildings, while candle-making, yarn dolls, and the popular make-your-own kazoo took place in the barn. Melissa Audier led the candle making with assistance from Karen Leenhouts and Meredith Flynn. Tara Hathaway helped children make yarn and peg dolls, and James Hathaway taught the kazoo making. Tim and Bridgett, dressed in period costume, led a very informative discussion on heirloom plants, collecting seeds and how to dry and store them for planting the following season.

Also set up in the barn was a bake sale table with pies, brownies, cookies and homemade lemonade for sale in the barn. Liz Hathaway has become the official fresh squeezed lemonade maker, and it's always a popular treat.

This was the 6th year in a row the Bullard Memorial Farm participated in Holliston Farms Day!

"Abe Lincoln" at the Farm! Submitted by Tara Hathaway

On October 29, 2015, Abraham Lincoln visited the Bullard Memorial Farm!

Well, it wasn't actually Abe Lincoln but, rather, impersonator Steve Wood from Claremont, NH, who shared insights and understanding about the life and times of our Abraham Lincoln.

"Abe" described his early life in Indiana and Illinois, his commitment to helping the less fortunate, and, ultimately, his election to the Presidency. He described his devotion to his family, the loss of three of his four sons, especially the devastating loss of his son Tad in 1871.

"Abe" also described the challenges that he and his countrymen faced during the War between the States. He also corrected the myth that, contrary to previous reports, he did not write the Gettysburg Address while riding the train to dedicate the Soldiers National Cemetery in Gettysburg on November 19, 1863. He prepared the original draft while in Washington and revised it while traveling to Gettysburg. "Abe" stated that his intent was to share his deep respect for the many sacrifices made by the soldiers from both sides of the conflict. His Gettysburg Address of about two minutes was decidedly shorter than the two hour delivery given earlier by Edward Everett. According to "Abe", Mr. Everett complimented him on the profound message shared in his brief speech.

Following his presentation, "Abe" answered questions from the guests who were fully enthralled with his presentation. He consented to having his picture taken with the Bullard Memorial Farm portrait of Abe Lincoln which hangs in the main staircase. The resemblance between "Abe" and our portrait of Abe is remarkable!

"Abe" shared that there is an organization of about 50 Abe Lincoln impersonators who give performances around the United States and abroad.

This special event created a wonderful evening of insight and understanding into the challenges of our much revered 16th President. A special thanks to the BMFA Education Committee for planning such an interesting presentation and providing the snacks and cider refreshment.

About 10 guests were in attendance for the event, the interest would have been higher, but unfortunately, several other local events ended up being scheduled after we had publicized our event.

Plimoth Plantation Pilgrim Event Submitted by Tara Hathaway

On Thursday, November 12, the BMFA Education Committee hosted a special presentation by Kristen Haggerty, Public Programs Coordinator at Plimoth Plantation: The Living Museum of 17th-century Plymouth and the Wampanoag Homeland. An historical role player and graduate student of Fashion Institute of Technology, Kristen recently finished her thesis entitled "In Modest Attire - Clothing the Pilgrims." It was a full house for this event, and guests included 3rd grade students who had just visited Plimouth Plantation with their class.

Kristen transformed from a modern woman into a 17th-century Colonist and shared the exciting stories of the Mayflower crossing and her life in Plymouth Colony. The audience had the chance to ask questions of either the historic Kristen or the modern Kristen.

Kristen spoke of the history of the pilgrims, a Separatist congregation, who were seeking religious freedom. She told the tale of the 66day crossing on the Mayflower, and the unexpected problems of the ship, the Speedwell, which was supposed to be accompanying the Mayflower, but due to leaking issues, was not able the make the journey. The loss of this ship resulted in many families being separated, as they had to reduce the number of passengers making the crossing. Kristen explained that the original destination for the Mayflower was to settle near the Hudson River in New York. However, due to the dangerous shoals off Cape Cod, and the fact that it was so late in the year, the decision was made to remain in New England.

It was in Cape Cod Bay that the men on the ship signed the Mayflower Compact, which laid the foundation for the community's government. The Mayflower arrived in New England on November 11, 1620, and in Plymouth on December 16, 1620. They began building the town, while still living on the Mayflower. That first winter was very hard many pilgrims died with only 52 survivors.

Kristen shared what life was like those first few years in Plymouth, how relationships grew with the Native American tribes, and the growth of the Colony as more people made the crossing from England. By 1627, there were about 160 people living in Plymouth Colony.

So where did the story of Thanksgiving come from? In the fall of 1621, the colonists marked their first harvest with a three-day celebration. Massasoit and 90 of his men from the Wampanoag tribe joined the English for feasting and entertainment. The focus would not have been on the fowl served, but rather, the many deer, as venison was a rare treat in England for the colonists. In the 1800s this famous celebration became the basis for the story of the First Thanksgiving.

After the event, Kristen shared her education and interest in textiles, so we hope to have her return for a future event, possibly a presentation on the BMFA textiles. Kristen is also a potential resource as we begin the archiving project.

Holiday Centerpiece Workshop Submitted by Tara Hathaway

It was such an unseasonably, warm day for the December 6th workshop that we actually held it outside—hard to believe! Being out by the barn creating greenery centerpieces gave everyone the opportunity to enjoy the amazing scenery and beauty of the Bullard Memorial Farm.

Our own Beverly Carney shared her talents and led the workshop. Each centerpiece was unique, but they were all beautiful. Several types of greens were used, including fir, boxwood, cedar, and holly. Embellishments were an array of choices from pine cones collected by Tim & Bridgett at the farm, to shining glass baubles. It was fun to see the finished masterpieces, which ranged from very natural to bright and shiny.

This was the first workshop event that has been held at the Farm, but it was so well received that another may be scheduled in the spring. Please feel free to share ideas and suggestions for future events!

2015 Robert W. Bullard Award Recipient

In November, Marlene McIntosh sent me the announcement of the 2015 recipient of the Robert W. Bullard Award for Excellence in Physiology at the University of Indiana, School of Medicine, Alex Sieg.

Alex was born and raised in Bettendorf, IA, and attended Augustana College in Rock Island, IL majoring in biochemistry and mathematics. In 2010, he graduated Summa Cum Laude and was inducted into the local chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, followed by a graduate program in Chemistry at Harvard University. During his graduate program research, he realized he wished he'd gone to medical school, so he graduated early with a Masters degree from Harvard and applied to medical school at the University of Indiana.

Following graduation from medical school, Alex hopes to train as either a cardiologist or an oncologist. In addition to clinical duties, he hopes to also have the opportunity to utilize his background in research to become a physician investigator.

Green Tip from Daphne Stevens

You've all seen those TV commercials about paper towels in which the most absorbent wins the prize. I'm sure the trees that gave their lives for both brands of paper towels didn't feel that way, not to mention all the carbon that was released into the air harming our planet. It's time to think twice before using paper towels.

Instead of paper towels, something we have done for years is use old dishcloths or cloth napkins. They're great to have on hand and you just throw them in the wash to reuse again and again (vs. tossing a paper towel in the trash). I used to use recycled paper towels, but I find the cloth is more absorbent and works better. I use them to wipe up spills and drying off vegetables after washing them.

Using cloth napkins instead of paper is another way to cut back on paper usage. We use cloth napkins for all meals, using different ones in the dining room from those in the kitchen. And, they don't take up a lot of space in the washer when it's time to do laundry.

Using old newspaper vs. paper towels to clean windows is another great way to go (or, even better, use a washable window scrubber with a squeegee).

How about using cloth handkerchiefs instead of paper tissues? It might take some getting used to, but they are more eco-friendly than paper, don't take up much space in the washing machine, and don't break apart in your pocket.

So, if you must buy paper towels, be prudent in your use of them and buy the ones made from recycled paper (i.e. the Seventh Generation brand). We keep paper towels on hand, but use them rarely (they are good for greasy foods and tasks—grease is tough to get out of cloth, as we all know!).
