Workshop Description:

Instructor Peter Elliott says, "Come and get lost in the world of Alcohol Ink, a free-flowing art medium with vivid stained-glass-like colors. The medium has an intuitive nature and a mind of its own." Participants can watch the art unfold before their eyes and be amazed at the results. This workshop is for new as well as experienced painters.

Students will learn how to: create beautifully textured backgrounds in less than a minute, identify the various properties of the inks and how they flow with blending solution, create a multitude of colors using only a few inks. Techniques include the drip and dropping of inks to make floral designs with Zentangle, creating depth and textures using simple items from home. Other techniques include using the Snowcap mixative and canned air to create stunning abstract land and seascapes, creating blooms using straws and canned air, working with alcohol inks on ceramic tile. Peter adds, "You will
