From analyzing the forms of various sonatas to writing our own theme and variations, we covered a wide range of material in the course. We learned new topics including vertical simultaneities and more modern topics including twelve-tone rows and Schenkerian analysis. We worked a lot with twelve-tone rows and learned relevant skills associated with post-tonal theory including matrices. Overall the course expanded my knowledge of music theory into the modern theoretical realm.</li> <li>• I learned about more advanced techniques and teachings in music theory, as well as some of the history of those techniques and different composers.</li> <li>• Dr. Lively's projects are wildly fulfilling and fun. I looked forward to every class with him. His wide knowledge of music theory and music history makes him a monolith of information, capable of breaking down any question that comes to mind. The curriculum was sufficiently covered and taught, still allowing much time for discussion and lecture beyond the required material.</li> </ul>

- No suggestions, love the class!
- I love this man and everything about how he runs his class. Expectations were so clear, I learned a ton, homework was reasonable and we were very well prepared for tests and quizzes. Amazing class.
- The instructor was very good because he often got his points straight and efficiently across. I was able to understand many of the concept very easily. I would love to have him again the future.
- Dr. Lively is an energetic and enthusiastic teacher. Overall I found the class to be interesting, informative, and not overly demanding regarding outside coursework. The course was primarily lecture-based although participation was frequently encouraged and we gave our own presentations at the end of the course. However, I think more student participation could have been beneficial to the overall level of engagement in class. By this I am referring to a potentially more discussion-based course that would require more interaction from the students. Overall I enjoyed the course this semester and Dr. Lively's perpetual enthusiasm always makes my mornings significantly more enjoyable.
- Professor Lively was a great professor to have for this class, and I felt that I was very confident in my skills and my standings in the class. I also felt like the amount of coursework was challenging and relevant, without being too much. Doing something else for the midterm and final exam besides a regular test also made the class more interesting for me, personally.
- Keep Dr. Lively around! He is a masterful teacher, intellectually gifted, and great fun. His courses and projects have consistently been a source of creative thought and energy for me. I hope to have another course with him before I graduate. Give this man a raise!

- I felt like the course was run to the maximum effect.

- I wish we had looked at more pieces

- Analysis of Contemporary music should be a fun and interesting class. However, the professor did not make it challenging whatsoever. I also felt we should have spent more time analyzing music. We spent a whole month on set theory. This was entirely unnecessary. We have all already studied set theory in theory IV and we did not learn much of anything new about it in analysis of contemporary music. It felt like a complete waste of my time. This is the type of class that I would normally have been very excited to go to and participate in; however, due to the professor, I was never excited about being class. In addition to all of this, the professor stressed at the beginning of the semester that we needed to purchase a 100$ anthology. He stated multiple times that we would be using the anthology in class. We used it twice the entire semester. I do not appreciate 1. having to purchase a book that I don't use and 2. not actually analyzing contemporary music in an analysis of contemporary music class. I was very disappointment in this class.
