

Emma Reesor serves as the Executive Director for the Rio Grande Headwaters Restoration Project, a local non-profit working to improve the health of the Rio Grande in the Colorado. Emma grew up on the prairies of Kansas and graduated from Bethel College (KS) with a BA in Biology. After moving to the San Luis Valley in 2013, she has applied her passion for rivers and restoration ecology through her involvement in the RGHRP and local water community. Emma lives in Alamosa with her husband John and their cats Lola and Gretchen.
